DEFENCE ASKS:

Why Wasn't Bennett A Witness?

By PETE LOUDON
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Failure of the Crown to call Premier Bennett in the "Dear Hal" letter case was scored in Assize Court here today.

Chief defence counsel, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, of Victoria, told the jury in his summation this morning:

"The one person only who could give conclusive evidence, W. A. C. Bennett, does not appear before you to give evidence."

Can Be Called

"The law is no respector of persons. No matter how exalted a person may be, he can be called by the court," said Mr. McKenzie.

"But he has not appeared before you."

"On that you are entitled to draw your own conclusions," Mr. McKenzie added.

Al Williamson, Vancouver public relations man, stands accused of forgery and uttering a forgery in respect to a letter which was sent to Ottawa over a signature purporting to be that of Premier Bennett.

Basic Defence

"The basic defence," said Mr. McKenzie, "is that Williamson had an honest belief he was authorized to write the letter."

Mr. McKenzie said the crown had not proved otherwise beyond a reasonable doubt.

Mr. McKenzie said the crown might argue that Williamson did not believe he had authority because he had told Hal Dornan, an assistant to Prime Minister Pearson, that he didn't think the premier would write such a letter.

The defence counsel said the crown might infer that if the premier wouldn't write it, Williamson

WILLIAMSON STORY DENIED BY GUNDERSON

By Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Einar Gunderson testified Thursday that he had refused to ask Premier Bennett to say he had written the "Dear Hal" letter and then say he had forgotten.

A sure witness in the Assize Court case here, Gunderson said the apparent falsehood had been urged on him by Vancouver public relations man Al Williamson.

Mr. Gunderson's testimony bluntly contradicted earlier testimony by Williamson who is being tried for forgery and uttering of forgery.

The witness, who identified himself as vice-president of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, was called during rebuttal by the crown after closing of the case for the defence.

'No Case'

Mr. Gunderson was told by crown counsel George Murray that Williamson had earlier testified that he had met Mr. Gunderson Feb. 17 and "that you had told him there was no case."

Mr. Murray said the earlier testimony quoted Mr. Gunderson as saying that Williamson had written many letters for the premier and in this case he had only exceeded his authority, that it was too bad the premier didn't send a letter "but don't worry about it."

On the stand, Mr. Gunderson did not recall this.

He said that on the date mentioned, "I met Mr. Williamson on the street."

Indiscretion

He told me of an indiscretion he felt badly about. He suggested I get in touch with the premier, who had denied writing the letter."

"He asked me to say he had forgotten."

"I told him if he had a confession to make, he'd better

World Hails White's Feat

LONDON (reuters) — News papers and commentators around the world today paid tribute to America's Gemini IV flight and the "walk" in space by Maj. Edward White.

Details of White's flight with Maj. James McDivitt were reported at length in most Western newspapers. Moscow radio and East European news media gave factual reports of the launching at Cape Kennedy, Fla., and of the flight.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, gave a half-column on its front page to report the launching and White's 20-minute space "walk."

Other Russian newspapers carried news of the launching on inside pages, but most dailies went to press too early to include reports of the "walk."

In Manchester, near the Royal Bank Observatory, Britain's top radio-astronomer, Sir Bernard Lovell, today paid tribute to Gemini's two astronauts.

GRISSEY: "I hope you got some good ones."

Grissom asks for a technical reading, then says: "Have you had anything to eat yet?"

White: "I'm in the middle of ... and I'm gonna fix a little chicken salad and finish it with fruit salad and ... (garble.)"

Grissom: "... We'll leave you alone and let you eat."

White: "Well, it's nice to talk to you and get all the news from the front."

White: "As we went over Houston I could actually see the gulf. While I was outside I saw the gulf and Galveston."

Grissom: "Say, Ed, when you came over on the night pass could you actually see buildings?"

White: "On the night pass?"

Grissom: "Yeah. You said you could see. . . ."

White: "No, I couldn't."

Waving Flags Recall Miracle at Dunkerque

FRANCE (UPI) — They ran out the flags today in honor of little ships and brave skippers who saved the flower of the British army from annihilation on the beaches of Dunkerque.

It was 25 years ago that more than 338,000 Canadian, British, French and other allied soldiers were pushed into the sea.

South Vietnamese troops were caught in two more Communist ambushes, one a followup action by the Viet Cong to an earlier ambush near Lao Thien, about 150 miles northeast of Saigon.

Casualties in the first ambush of a six-vehicle convoy Thursday totalled 15 government troops killed, 15 wounded and 15 missing. Communist losses were not known.

A relief force sent in a few hours later was hit about seven miles northeast of the first action. The government losses in this engagement were nine killed and 14 wounded. Planes and artillery fire finally routed the guerrillas.

back to the English Channel by a merciless horde of Nazis who turned Dunkerque into a flaming hell.

A motley armada of 860 ships — ranging from private yachts to river barges — snatched the doomed allied troops from the jaws of death.

Today, about 100 little ships, including 40 which took part in the original operation, set sail from the harbors of southern England to relieve one of the epic rescues in the history of war.

The flotilla is under the command of Cmdr. G. S. Clarabut, a Dunkerque veteran. His ship flew the red and white flag of St. George, the ensign of the Royal Navy.

The battle of Dunkerque may not have been an allied victory. But it saved the British army from Hitler's dive-bombers and tanks and probably saved Britain from invasion and made possible the allied return to France on D-Day four years later.

RED CARPET

The rebuilt Dunkerque, showing few battle scars, rolled out the red carpet today for the returning ships. They were escorted by two French warships, two vessels of the Royal Navy and two Royal Air Force speedboats.

There will be memorial ceremonies Saturday at the Dunkerque battle monument along the sea wall. Wreaths will be placed and flowers tossed into the sea while the little ships sail slowly by and French jets zoom overhead.

On Sunday, Dunkerque will celebrate the 20th anniversary of its liberation from Nazi occupation.

The rescue of the British army actually began on the night of May 26, 1940.

Hemmed in by Hitler's panzer divisions and blasted by Luftwaffe dive-bombers, the British waited with their backs to the sea for a rescue that could only come from the channel.

The climax of the operation came on May 31 and June 1 when 132,000 more men were landed safely in England.

GUNDERSON DENIES WILLIAMSON CLAIMS ON 'DEAR HAL' LETTER

applied for the PGE position in 1956.

"The only one I ever saw was this one here. There was never any agreement like that," he stated.

Mr. Gunderson was excused. He was not asked to comment on other statements Williamson had made earlier in the day in reference to Mr. Gunderson.

Mr. Williamson had been discussing a $1,000 cheque, which he said he had been given to him by Harry Stonehill and which he said he had given to Mr. Gunderson who was trustee for a Social Credit education fund. Mr. Williamson testified earlier that he had collected $35,000 or $40,000 for the party and the money had gone to Mr. Gunderson.

Told Gunderson

Williamson told the court that he had reported to Mr. Gunderson after giving certain statements to the RCMP concerning the "Dear Hal" letter and the Stonehill case generally.

He said Mr. Gunderson had asked if he had said anything about the political contributions and Williamson recalled he answered "no."

In explaining why he wanted a letter from Premier Bennett in support of Stonehill, Williamson said he told Mr. Gunderson what Stonehill had done for B.C., including the contribution he made.

Gunderson denied having received the contribution from him, Williamson told the court.

Staggered Me . . .

"This staggered me because I had personally delivered it to him. This was the cheque from Stonehill to the Social Credit education fund."

"I endorsed it in his presence and he handed it to his secretary. I argued the point with him but he didn't seem to believe he had received the cheque."

Williamson told the court he had told Stonehill of Gunderson's remarks and Stonehill's accountant "produced the cancelled cheque and made a photographic copy of it and gave it to me."

"The original cheque he said he would keep in a secure place."

Mr. McKenzie showed Williamson a cheque and Williamson said, "This is the cheque I received from Harry Stonehill and which I endorsed and turned over to Gunderson."

Too Delicate
Williamson said he had calls from newspapers at about this time asking about the letter to Dornan. He said he called Gunderson but was told the matter was too delicate to discuss over the phone.

Williamson suggested the matter be discussed with Attorney-General Robert Bonner. But Mr. Gunderson said he didn't want to talk to Mr. Bonner. Williamson recalled; he only wanted to talk to the premier.

Mr. Williamson testified that the next morning Mr. Gunderson had still not talked to the premier to talk to the premier.

Mr. Gunderson pointed to a document which he said Williamson had submitted, showing his qualifications, when he had not for publication, on behalf of the premier and had typed but not signed them, W.A.C. Bennett. And he said he had never signed letters for Mr. Gunderson.

Discussed Policy

Mr. Murray said Williamson had claimed to have handled most of the election campaigns after 1954 but Williamson had no part in policy making. Mr. Williamson replied he had often discussed policy with the premier but that the premier was the man who made the decisions.

Also in answer to questions Williamson said the premier has had several executive assistants. He named Ron Worley, Dan Ekman and the incumbent, William Budd.

"I would say that the only one who would have any part in campaigns, that the premier would rely on, was Mr. Ekman."

To another question, Williamson said the $35,000 to $40,000 he had claimed to have collected for Social Credit had been spread over nine years and was in all probability.

Nothing Sinister

He said there was nothing sinister in his collecting funds or in Mr. Gunderson collecting them.

He said the very name "campaign funds" would be kept away from the premier. He said he had several times heard the premier deny the existence of campaign funds.

At another point Williamson said he had changed his mind about wanting Stonehill as a client when the RCMP began an investigation on Stonehill.

"Up until that time I still thought he would be a very good for B.C."

Williamson said Sgt. W.J. Halloran of the RCMP had not told the story correctly when he quoted Williamson as saying Premier Bennett had warned the Stonehill was a "bad man" and Williamson should have nothing to do with him."

Williamson said he had been told by the premier that the premier had heard rumors about Stonehill. Williamson said he told the premier the RCMP had nothing against Stonehill.

Williamson said the premier stated "I wish you would tell that to the attorney-general." Williamson said he did.

He told the court he was less enthusiastic about Stonehill after the application for residence in Canada was refused by the federal immigration department.

Wire to Nicholson

Williamson was asked about a telegram which had been found in his office addressed to Jack Nicholson, then a Liberal cabinet minister.

That telegram said Stonehill had been turned down and asked the minister to interest himself in the case and that the order should be delayed until Stone-hill's children were out of school.

Williamson said the telegram was written by Stonehill and copies had been sent to a number of people. Mr. Murray said the telegram was signed by Williamson but the accused said he did not send it out.

There followed a question and answer exchange in which Mr. Murray referred back constantly to earlier testimony or to a statement allegedly given by the accused to the police.

Dornan Suggestion

In the course of making replies Williamson said the first suggestion that a letter be obtained from Premier Bennett came from Mr. Dornan. Williamson said he did not regard the letter as an aid to Stonehill but as the satisfaction of a request from an old friend.

He said he had no idea why Dornan wanted the letter.

Asked if he had not heard unsavory reports on Stonehill, Williamson said he could not see the expulsion from the Philippines was necessarily damaging to Stonehill's reputation. Twenty people were kicked out, he said.

It wasn't necessarily a bad thing for a man to want to "get away from that atmosphere and enter business in a good country."

Williamson said Stonehill did not meet all of Williamson's expenses and he was out of pocket.

"This was a generous gesture on your part for B.C.?" asked counsel.

Part Of My Work

"I considered it part of my work," said Williamson.

Williamson said he paid out $2,000 in 1963 campaign expenses. He said this was paid to Claire Anderson (a former assistant), Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Lane, Mr. Turner, several reporters—and there were others.

The lawyer suggested the reason Williamson had gone to the RCMP to make a statement was because he realized he had done something wrong.

Williamson said no, it was to keep the police informed in the Stonehill case.

"Did you tell Sgt. Halloran you had signed the premier's name?" Williamson was asked.

"No I did not," he said.

He was asked if he knew why the sergeant would say otherwise.

He replied that he did not.

Harassment

Mr. Murray asked what was the "mess" that Williamson had said he was involved in. Williamson said it was harassment by the press and telephone cranks that he was referring to.

The accused was asked to recall whether he had said in a written statement that he didn't think the premier would write such a letter as Mr. Dornan had requested.

He said he couldn't swear to the actual words.

"You know the premier would not write it?"

"I said I don't know if he would write it," said Williamson.

"Come now, this is a statement made and read over by you."

Head of RCMP Under Heavy Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Douglas came when Mr. Fisher, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, launched a sharply-worded assault Thursday night on RCMP Commissioner G. B. McClellan.

He charged that recent evidence suggested Canada's No. 1 Mountie had "a bit of bigotry and bias in his soul," lacked appreciation for parliamentary democracy and warranted "a good close look" by the government.

Mr. Fisher's criticism, made during a Commons adjournment debate, drew equally strong support for Commissioner McClellan from Justice Minister Favreau.

He said recent remarks by the commissioner, which drew Mr. Fisher's ire, were fully warranted and added that there was no constructive criticism in referring to "a devoted public servant in contemptuous terms."

Mr. Fisher, MP for Port Arthur, based his criticism on two recent developments. One was a Toronto Telegram interview in which Mr. McClellan said there are "sinister forces" working to destroy the RCMP; the other a letter to the CBC written by the commissioner complaining about a television commentary.

CANADA MAY FOLLOW SILVER CUT

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada may have to lower the silver content of its coinage as a result of President Johnson's recommendation to Congress to cut the use of silver in American coins, it was indicated here today.

Officials of the Royal Canadian Mint declined comment on the Washington announcement that silver is to be dropped from American dimes and quarters, and cut to 40 per cent from 90 per cent of American half-dollars.

Silver is used in Canadian 10, 25, 50-cent and $1 coins, but the Canadian coins contain only 80 per cent silver in comparison to the American 90 per cent content.

COWBOY-AND-INDIAN SHOW AMBUSHED

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — An ambitious $900,000 project to stage a huge Canadian cowboy and Indian rodeo show at Blackpool has collapsed and seven Canadian cowboys and a band of 32 horses are stranded in Britain's largest northern resort community.

"The money we had hoped to raise for this major exhibition and rodeo has not been forthcoming," Brown said, adding that he was trying to get in touch with External Affairs Minister Martin in Ottawa to help finance the return trip of the cowboys already here.

Chuck Alyett of Niagara

Falls, Ont., one of the cowboys, said in an interview that he and his friends are shocked and depressed by what has occurred.

"We came over here in good faith. We had been told that the buildings in Blackpool for our show had been pretty well completed and that we would have a big summer run from June to September.

"So we came over. But the financial backers apparently didn't have enough money. We brought over 32 horses, a mule and six chuckwagons. The shipping line now may confiscate the horses because their passage has not been paid."

Out of the Past

RUSSIA, WHICH LED THE way with its own recent acrobatics in space, joined the rest of the world in congratulating the United States on the history-making flight now in progress. It was an international gesture—a significant association of earthlings in the face of the vast impersonality of space—which did much to demonstrate the essential community of scientific efforts to wrest facts from nature, the basic unimportance of ideology in the great task of advancing man's knowledge of the cosmos.

Is it too much to hope at this point, as each of the two great nations strives to exceed the other, that man's eventual conquest of space travel may be made on a co-operative basis—a joint global effort representing all the peoples of the planet?

We have become somewhat accustomed—with an almost unbelievable mid-twentieth-century sophistication—to manned capsule flight a hundred miles above the earth. But there is a special thrill—a tingle of excitement that carries a full measure of apprehension—in contemplating the free-floating exploits of the space heroes.

The earth-bound mind reels at thought of the speed, the limitless sights, the exultation and the constant imminence of sudden disaster with which the space-suited astronaut contends. We know that even these feats, conducted at the end of a nylon lifeline which is his only link with the universe of human beings, may in time be accepted as routine. Soon, not mere existence but practical achievement will be required of those who step into the void-carrying tools and blueprints.

But before familiarity with the incredible leads to acceptance of the seemingly impossible, mankind must render to these pioneers the acclaim that is their due. Back of the scientific paraphernalia of space suits, rockets and intricate electronic equipment lie the still essential ingredients of human courage, human curiosity and human ingenuity—even humor. These are the same qualities which drove some far-distant forbear to explore the awful unknown of the other side of the mountain, or enabled him to investigate for the first time the shadowed depths of a dreadful pool.

Today we have vastly increased the scope of man's enquiry, but we have not improved on the fundamental factor—the enduring human spirit without which all the rest would be impossible.

The world therefore rightly salutes the nation and the men who today are taking great new strides along the trail of man's destiny. Few of us will follow far. But we live in the age of giants.

A Global U.S. Dollar

THE GREAT DEBATE OVER the world monetary system which is being carried on by the economists, international bankers and politicians hardly seems to touch the lives of average men going about their daily work.

But there is, in fact, a direct relationship between that daily work and the attempt to build a more workable arrangement for handling and interchanging goods and currencies between one country and another. In the view of some experts unless better arrangements are found soon, a great many people in a great many countries will find themselves without any daily work to do because of a curtailment of international trade.

France's President de Gaulle recently caused a stir when he strongly advocated a return to the gold standard, a move completely unacceptable to the United States and most other Western governments. Other European countries have proposed in general terms that some type of international currency be created which would serve as a universal medium of exchange.

The latest idea, however—and one which may be given serious consideration—comes from a Stanford University economist and government financial adviser, Prof. Emile Despres. His idea, which has attracted wide interest, has the advantage of being simple and clear. He would have the United States government take unilateral action which would in effect make the United States dollar the official international currency. The reasoning is that the dollar is already the most stable and widely-used medium of exchange and it would be only sensible to regularize its position.

Under the Despres plan, the United States would alter its 30-year-old policy of buying and selling gold at $35 an ounce and instead would only sell gold at that price. This would, in other words, put to the rest of the world the question of which was the better to have, gold or American dollars. And Prof. Despres believes the choice would be dollars.

First part of the move would be to invite all reluctant foreign dollar holders to convert to gold. After this the gold-buying policy would be changed so that the United States would exchange its dollars for only one-third of the gold reserves existing prior to the exchange offer. There would be exceptions, of course, for underdeveloped countries and others in special circumstances, but in the case of France, for example, the move would mean that two-thirds of the carefully-gathered gold reserve would no longer be exchangeable for dollars.

Prof. Despres believes that it is the dollar which is defending gold, holding the price up, rather than the other way around. The dollar is essential to all business transactions and no country dares to let its own currency depreciate in terms of dollars if it can help it. For this reason no country would want to hold gold which it could not convert to American dollars.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

(Mr. Fisher is the member for Port Arthur riding for the New Democratic Party.)

George Nowlan: An Amiable Man

OTTAWA—There has not been any simulation or mechanical response to a traditional situation in the sadness of politicians at the death of George Nowlan. He was an amiable man.

His faults were not forgiven; they were not even considered because they seemed engaging aspects of a man's man. Mr. Nowlan liked people and disliked disreputable and party pettiness in relations among men.

In his 17 years in the Commons, Mr. Nowlan became one of the small cluster of speakers who could attract MPs into the chamber to listen. Some of this attractiveness was his wit in skimming the Liberals without using a crude hatchet.

From 1957 to 1961, when he answered for the CBC and the Board of Broadcast Governors in the House, he always managed to get the best of the most fearsome of Opposition attackers, Jack Pickersgill. Indeed, he was the only minister of the Diefenbaker government who kept the Pickersgill terror under control.

Careful preparation or detailed presentation of information was never Nowlan's long-suit. He believed in the simple, straightforward speech and the quick, sharp rejoinder when criticized.

He was a Conservative in the old tradition, a pre-Diefenbaker man who believed in balanced budgets and as little government interference in business and society as possible. His whole instinct was against drastic change and major innovation.

Thus he was ranged among the right-wingers in the Diefenbaker cabinet, with Donald Fleming, and not with the innovators like Alvin Hamilton.

The character of his Conservatism was mellowed by his personal affability. This explains why he was the man who almost became the caretaker prime minister of Canada during that long weekend in February, 1962, when John Diefenbaker nearly resigned over the defence crisis and the decision of Douglas Harkness to give up the ministry of national defence.

Those who believed that Mr. Diefenbaker would or should go knew that Mr. Nowlan was the one member of the cabinet with the popularity among Conservative MPs to win their support and the one man who seemed to have the savvy to carry on to a budget and the end of a normal session.

One of the best measures of Mr. Nowlan's skill was the ease with which he put through the Broadcasting Act in 1958. It completed all stages, including the Senate, in less than 10 days' sitting time.

It was contentious, creating the Board of Broadcasting Governors, giving the CBC a different form of executive organization, and clearing the way for private television in much of the country. In the process, Mr. Nowlan hardly spoke in total for longer than 40 minutes.

There isn't any doubt in my mind that Mr. Nowlan saved the CBC, as we know it, from strong elements in the government caucus which wanted to dismantle it or to alter its role so that it would have become merely a distribution agency or a production group like the National Film Board.

In retrospect, Mr. Nowlan seems to have been a good minister and a top-notch politician in the House and in his native Maritimes. Like most Maritimers, he never had the thrust to push his political reputation much west of Ottawa.

Perhaps that is why he never became the top man in his party, despite his enormous talents. He always hankered after a judgeship and talked nostalgically about law and the courts. He's gone with that dream unrealized but in our judgment he was just as big a man as his physique, six feet, five inches, and square in the shoulder.

All types of books and documents relating to the status and history of women were received. They were written in English, French, German and in the Slavonic languages.

Mementoes of Lady Aberdeen were donated too, including a miniature portrait that she had given to a friend, invitations to parties at Rideau Hall and some comments written by the founder on various phases of NCW work.

The first 1,000 books collected were placed on shelves in the Ralph Connor House in Winnipeg, as a temporary measure until the number reached 5,000.

Trouble was that, after the initial drive, donations were slow in coming in. To date the collection only numbers 1,800.

Miss Elizabeth Long of Winnipeg, well-known newspaper and radio writer and chairman of arts and letters with the National Council of Women when the project was in its infancy, has been the moving force in keeping it alive.

She arranged the several drives, watched over the books that were placed in the Ralph Connor House, and worked tirelessly to find some way to have them recognized and used in the way that was first planned.

This week, at Nanaimo, it was Miss Long who reported that the university at Waterloo, Ont., was interested in the collection and it was she who advised that the offer be considered.

Her suggestion was accepted and the collection will be housed in the university to mark Canada's centennial and the 75th anniversary of the National Council of Women.

Delegates at the Nanaimo convention also voted to raise $2,000 for the care and cataloguing of the books, so they will go to the university in top-notch condition.

The collection is not large, but it is good. At some future date it could still become the nucleus of a library such as the NCW envisioned when the project was originated.

In the meantime, it will be used as it was intended, by writers and researchers, who will no doubt find it invaluable in their work.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

Decision of the National Council of Women, in session this week at Nanaimo, to house its collection of books and other data on women and women's activities, in an Ontario university, brings a worthwhile project to a worthy conclusion.

The project originated in 1954 when the NCW decided to compile a library primarily as a national reference of books and pamphlets on noteworthy contributions of women leaders in all fields, all countries and of all periods, also books and documents relating to the history and status of women down the ages.

When a certain number of books were gathered (the target was 5,000), original plan was to operate the collection as a private library for the use of writers and research students, as well as for general libraries in all parts of Canada.

As such, the project had the approval of leading Canadian librarians who had found it necessary, on occasions, to write out of the country to obtain information about women's groups—including the early history of Canadian organizations.

If information was available at all, it was scattered across the country amongst relatives, local libraries, even a university or two. It was an expensive matter to locate the material in order to even borrow it. The NCW believed such information should be in some centralized place. That was the main idea behind the project.

In 1958, to mark the 100th anniversary of the birth of Lady Aberdeen, wife of a former governor-general of Canada and the founder of the National Council of Women, the plan was named the Lady Aberdeen Memorial Library.

The same year a concentrated drive was organized across Canada for new and old books, through gifts or bequests, and for donations of money.

Fifty local Councils of Women in Canada, including the one in Victoria, assisted with the drive.

If Viet Nam War Is Escalating Then Public Should be Told

THE NEW YORK TIMES
An Editorial

such an evolution would represent a complete break with the policy enunciated by President Kennedy when, in September, 1963, he said:

"In the final analysis, it is their war. They are the ones who have to win it or lose it. We can help them, we can send our men out there as advisers, but they have to win it, the people of Viet Nam, against the Communists."

Futile Months

Coming after futile months of bombing North Viet Nam, the current build-up seems to recognize that the war cannot be won in the North, but could be lost in the South. Ironically, it was the bombing of the North that set off the build-up, for initially its aim was simply to protect Da Nang, the key air base for the attacks against the North. In this manner, one furious upward whirl on the escalation spiral has led into another.

Marine and paratroop battalions now have been landed in five areas, ostensibly to protect air bases and the ports that supply them. But some of these units have begun to abandon, if the country is being taken gradually and almost surreptitiously into a large-scale land war on the continent of Asia, the time has come for the nation to be told what is happening—and why.

Whether this shift would be wise can be debated. But what can hardly be debated is that

Grave Hazards

There are reports that "aggressive patrolling" is beginning and that this will give way to the more extensive kind of "eleg and hold" counter-insurgency operations hitherto carried out only by South Vietnamese forces. The hazards go beyond the obvious. Even those military officers in Washington who believe the Communists can be defeated with the aid of a large build-up reportedly recognize the difficulty. American troops have in "distinguishing the enemy who fades into the civilian population."

Earlier this month Mr. Johnson said that the war in Viet Nam had "no purely military solution in sight for either side." He indicated that his aim was to maintain the present stalemate until the Communists agreed to a negotiated settlement.

If this aim is being abandoned, if the country is being taken gradually and almost surreptitiously into a large-scale land war on the continent of Asia, the time has come for the nation to be told what is happening—and why.

Social Issue

Most far-reaching of all, transplantation of ova and storage of semen would mean that one mother or one father could in principle pass on their hereditary characteristics to any number of children making the whole question of eugenics an immediate social issue.

Professor Lederberg says he has been accused of "degenerate advocacy" for discussing these possibilities and "not pretending they are far off." But he points out that such discoveries may emerge from research on entirely humanitarian problems such as treatment and care of the aged, mental retardation in children, and help for infertile couples.

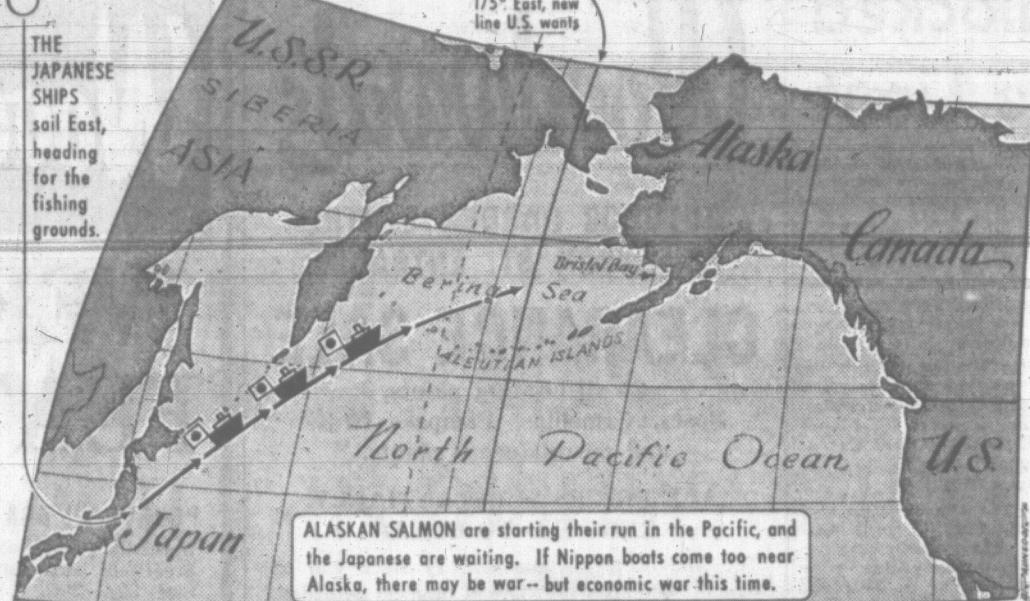

Perhaps the outstanding optimist of the series is Dr. Werner von Braun, the rocket engineer, who believes that space exploration will help to unite men and release energies which might otherwise be channeled into war—"just as the Crusades saved Europe much bloodshed by diverting the energies of its fighting men to a far-away objective."

Space Routine

By 1984, he says, men may have landed on the surface of Mars; they will certainly have flown past the surface both of Mars and of Venus, to have a close look. Meanwhile, he predicts, there may be a large

The Great Fish War

All Chinese Are Reduced To Ranks

By VICTOR ZORZA
Manchester Guardian

The officers and other ranks of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, all three million of them, are to be stripped of such bourgeois-revisionist accoutrements as the insignia that distinguish the various ranks and services.

The officers' ranks, introduced in 1955 when something like the Soviet style was adopted, will be abolished. Lieutenants and colonels, to say nothing of generals and marshals, will all be known simply as commanders, whether of platoons and regiments, divisions and armies.

And Sam Browne will at last be punished for his service with the Indian Army in the last century, when the British imperialists first began to hatch their dark plots against China. "The slung belt over the shoulder as worn by officers," says the Chinese government decision, "will be abolished."

A leading article in the Liberation Army Daily explained that the new system would promote the unity between officers and men, the higher and lower levels, the Army and the people, and the further development of the glorious tradition of our Army."

Didn't Conform

The 10 years during which the other system was in force have proved that it is not in conformity with our army's glorious tradition." The new system would enhance "the military quality" of the forces and the "class consciousness" of their personnel and help the officers "to place themselves in the position of ordinary soldiers."

The navy will wear the same uniform as the army and air force, though its color will be dark grey in place of khaki, and will lose its round hats. The traditional "Chiehfang" hat, floppy and soft-peaked, will replace the peak caps worn by members of all the forces.

Officers of field grade and higher will no longer wear their Western-style military uniform. "And," the official Chinese news agency reports last but surely not least, "the skirt and blouse style of dress worn by women shall be abolished." It does not say what, if anything, will take its place.

300 Japanese Boats Move Into Place

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON — When an estimated 27 million red sockeye salmon make their run to the high seas from Alaska's Bristol Bay in the coming weeks, they will bring a test of will between Japan and the United States.

The confrontation could easily bring a "fish war" and economic sanctions that would affect far more than the $80-100 million Bristol Bay fishery.

A fleet of 300 fishing vessels moved out of their Japanese home ports May 21-22 and headed toward the Bering Sea. Their timetable called for taking positions of readiness between June 1 and 6 with hundreds of miles of high seas nets some of them ten miles long. The nets are strung along an invisible "abstention line."

The line is fixed at the meridian 175 Degrees West Longitude. It is in this vicinity that Bristol Bay salmon come to mix with Asian red salmon, spawned in Siberia.

"Unfortunately, they do not come with red, white and blue stripes to distinguish them from the Asian salmon," pointed out one Japanese legal representative.

Since 1883, American fishermen have been fishing the Bristol Bay area of the North Pacific, and there they established the greatest red salmon fishery in the world. The fishermen have been subject to extremely strict conservation regulations, aimed at allowing the escapement of salmon into streams to assure the propagation of more salmon stock. In recent years, the Bristol Bay fishermen have been permitted to fish only a few hours each week during the short legal season.

In testimony before a Senate Commerce Committee, Alaska's Governor William A. Egan called the Japanese high seas fishery "a shameful biological waste." He said that in 1964 the Japanese took 1.8 million immature Bristol Bay red salmon averaging about 3.8 pounds each. If these fish had been permitted to return to Bristol Bay as prime adult fish one year later, their average weight would have been more than 5.5 pounds each.

Legislation now in Congress provides that whenever the Secretary of Interior determines that fishing vessels of a foreign country are operated to the detriment of the domestic fishery programs, the President may increase duties up to 50 per cent of the July, 1934 level on any fishery product in any form from the offending country.

This legislation, approved by the Senate but still to be considered in the House, brought sharp protests from Japan. The Japan Fisheries Association called it economic sanctions designed to exclude Japan from fishing salmon resources of the high seas in areas where such fishing is regulated by international agreement. In 1951 the North Pacific Fisheries Convention established the 175 Degrees West Longitude abstention line.

MPs Deadlocked On Debate Limit

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government and the Conservative opposition are deadlocked in the Commons over a controversial debate-limiting proposal that would permit cabinet ministers to set time limits on debates.

The impasse arose when the government rejected a Conservative suggestion to scrap the proposal after the Conservatives threatened to drag out the debate.

As the debate on reforms to rules and procedures entered its 10th day, sources in both parties said there are no plans at present for behind-the-scenes negotiations to solve the differences.

There was the possibility the Conservatives would put forward more amendments in hopes the government would consider them favorably.

NEW URANIUM RULES

Price Control Bid Thwarted

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government's new uranium export policy blocks what industry sources suspect was an effort by France to control world prices for the strategic metal over a long period.

At the same time, it turns the individual Canadian producers loose for the first time to make the best deal they can with possible customers, under safeguards that the uranium oxide will be used only for peaceful purposes.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the new policy in the Commons Thursday night. It provides:

1. Government stockpiling for a five-year period through purchases at $4.90 a pound to keep existing mines producing at present levels.

2. Authorization to Canadian producers to export only on contracts which certify the buying country will use the uranium oxide only for peaceful purposes such as nuclear power projects.

3. Canadian producers may sign contracts to sell uranium for 30 years, "the average anticipated life" of a nuclear power station, for each power station they supply.

4. Exports for stockpiling by the buying country will be limited to five years and only for "reasonable" amounts.

Mining sources say the latter two conditions prevent any attempt by France or any other country to get a guaranteed supply of uranium oxide for a long period at current low prices with the ultimate aim of controlling the world price when world demand rises, probably within the next 10 years.

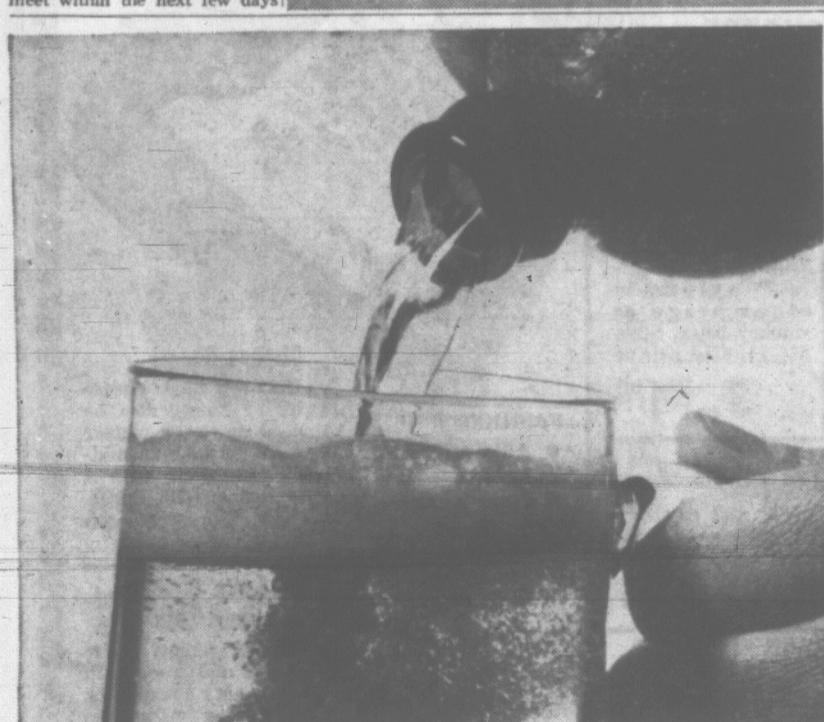

In the past all Canadian uranium oxide sales—Britain and the United States—have been negotiated by the government which then had the difficult job of allocating the production among the various mines.

Now the Canadian producers will make their own deals, provided the conditions laid down by the government to obtain export permits are met.

And in the current period of low demand, they will be negotiating with France and other countries with the assurance that if they can't reach a satisfactory arrangement the federal government will buy up their production at the $4.90-a-pound price.

Currently only three Canadian producers are making sales abroad, all to Britain and at prices ranging from $4.50 a pound to $5.40 a pound. Costs of production are roughly $3.30 a pound.

Canadian and French government officials are expected to meet within the next few days

Beermannship is the art of learning inside-information about beer.

Let's revive the grand art of pouring beer.

Beermannship had its real beginnings 50 years ago.

In those days a man's pouring technique was as important as his fishing technique. A good beer-pourer could gather a crowd almost anywhere he went.

Nowadays many men are too busy to give their beer the attention it deserves.

Well, this modern age has robbed us of too many good old things. It's time we fought back. It's time we revived pouring as a prideful thing.

Take a tip from our brewmaster. Pour your beer boldly into the centre of the glass, so that it gets a good head. This releases the bouquet. Doubles your enjoyment.

Try it with Molson Canadian — the light beer that's all beer.

Toronto police the morning of Oct. 25. He was stationed with evidence, and is basing her case on two recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings.

During cross-examination, Loehr told the court he was not present with Lonergan at all times prior to the confession, but denied prompting Lonergan during the taking of the confession.

the yearly Royal Academy of Dancing examinations just completed in Victoria.

Over 40 students from four dance schools in the Victoria area came under the critical eye of RAD children's examiner, Miss Irene Ayres, in her two-day exam session in the city.

Examine 800

On a four and a half month tour of western Canada, from Royal Academy headquarters in London, England, Miss Ayres will examine more than 900 B.C. ballet students by June 7.

Not only the dancers' techniques, posture, miming ability and other outward signs have been noticed during the examinations.

The youngsters' appreciation of music, their knowledge of ballet terms, origins of costumes and history of dancing are also part of the exam.

All form part of the Royal Academy's "ballet in education" program, studied by 65,000 children in Great Britain alone, and geared mostly to the "once-a-week" ballet student.

More advanced examinations are conducted by a RAD representative who is sent from London every two years.

No Comparison

Asked how Canadian ballet students stacked up against their British counterparts, Miss Ayres refused to make any comparisons which might discourage aspiring dancers here.

"Canadian students are very keen," she said.

She has found in conducting RAD exams in other countries that "you get good, bad and average students everywhere."

Correct training, she states, is the most important factor in producing a ballet dancer.

Never Wasted

And even a small amount of ballet training, Miss Ayres claims, is never wasted.

Knowledge of dancing is necessary to produce good ballet audiences, she says.

"And an appreciative audience is necessary to any ballet company."

Referring again to the RAD exams, Miss Ayres points out that Dame Margot Fonteyn, president of the Royal Academy, took the exams before embarking on her professional career.

"And so have many other famous dancers," she adds.

Countries from Iceland to Israel are visited by RAD examiners every year or two.

All Speak French

A language barrier is practically unknown to them since French is the universal language of ballet.

Miss Ayres, who first studied ballet at the Cone School of Dancing, has been a Royal Academy children's examiner since 1959.

She has examined students in Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, and last year conducted examinations in eastern Canada.

After travelling to Port Alberni for more examinations she will return to England, where she runs her own ballet school in Kent, now in the hands of her head assistant.

Vancouver Men Must Stand Trial

EDMONTON (CP)—Two Vancouver men charged with illegal possession of funds will stand trial at the September sittings of the Alberta Supreme Court. Magistrate S. V. Legg ruled Thursday at a preliminary hearing.

Bail was fixed at $6,000 each for Joseph Percival, 37, and James McDougall, 32, who were arrested in Edmonton April 17.

Police charge some of the money taken when Percival and McDougall were arrested came from a Vancouver warehouse from which $1,212,000 in mutilated currency was stolen Feb. 11.

Gov't To Back CPAL Plans For Expansion

Times-Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The Canadian government will take every possible step to see that Canadian Pacific Air Lines obtains a round-the-world route, Transport Minister Jack Pickersgill said today.

"The Canadian government would be very happy if this could be done," he told the Commons, "and will take every possible step it can within the area of the recent agreement between the two national airlines," he said.

Pickersgill made his statement in reply to a question from Leon Balcer (Independent-Two Rivers) about the possibility of CPAL operating a round-the-world route through Bangkok.

Pickersgill's statement follows one by CPAL president Grant McConachie Tuesday in which he said CPAL has high hopes of becoming a round-the-world air carrier as a result of the new national air policy.

He said the policy firmly designated CPAL as a government-backed airline and would remove doubts by some overseas governments that the airline did not have the full support of the Canadian government.

Such doubts have created difficulties in obtaining new air routes, he said.

McConachie also revealed that CPAL has already applied to operate an air service from Rome to Bangkok and Hong Kong, thus providing a round-the-world service.

Funeral services were held at McCall Bros. today, with Pastor E. A. Hornby officiating. Burial was at Royal Oak.

Born in Scotland, the 87-year-old minister lived 25 years in Victoria and had taught at Western Pentecostal Bible College. He retired 10 years ago.

Mr. Purse is survived by the widow, Nora; two sons, James in White Rock and Thomas in Vancouver; two step-daughters, Mrs. Mavis McBurnie of Burnaby and Mrs. Mildred McLeod of Nanaimo; a stepson, Claire Cliff of Victoria; three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Few Words and Down Goes Market

By JIM HUME

Times Business Editor

If you are wondering why the market took a sudden dip in the middle of this week you can lay the blame at the feet of William McChesney Martin, chairman of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board.

Mr. Martin was making a routine luncheon speech to alumni at Columbia University. He told the group that there are "dissimilarities between our present prosperity and the fabulous Twenties."

On Tuesday in New York the Dow Jones Industrial averages dropped 9.51 and 4.47 Wednesday. The New York market was off as much as 11 points Wednesday and the to realize the benefits of un-ripple was similarly reflected in Toronto and Vancouver.

There is no doubt that most of the shudder was caused by Mr. Martin.

What President Johnson and other Washington officials thought of Mr. Martin's crepe-hanging we don't know for they have maintained a solid front of silence. Possibly they're hoping that by saying nothing the dangers outlined in Mr. Martin's speech will go away.

Here's what he said when reviewing the period preceding the 1929-33 depression.

Then as now, many government officials, scholars and businessmen were convinced that a new economic era had opened, an era in which business fluctuations had become a thing of the past, in which poverty was about to be abolished and in which perennial economic progress and expansion was assured.

He went on to say that the great depression was brought about by "maladjustments born of the boom of the '20's" and added the warning: "We must continuously be on the alert to prevent a recurrence of maladjustments—even at the risk of being falsely accused of failing to realize the benefits of un-ripple was similarly reflected in Toronto and Vancouver.

Our common goals of maximum production, employment and purchasing power can be realized only if we are willing and able to prevent orderly expansion from turning into disorderly boom."

The four main similarities pointed to by Mr. Martin were:

- Seven years of steady, uninterrupted progress.

- A concentration of prosperity in fully developed countries and, within those countries, a concentration of prosperity in highly industrialized areas.

- A large increase in private domestic debt.

Dotted throughout the speech were references to lack of "concrete policies" and "other weaknesses" but he did not elaborate on either.

By Thursday the market was happen again but that it would not if proper safeguards were taken and the vigilance of responsible leaders never relaxed.

It makes a great deal of sense.

Canada Labor Income Jumps 10 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor income, the most important single factor in the gross national product, ran 10 per cent ahead of 1964 figures in the first quarter of this year.

The bureau of statistics reported today that salaries, wages and supplementary labor income paid to workers in Canada amounted to $2,032,000,000 in March and $6,021,000,000 in the first three months of this year.

These were increases of 10.6 per cent for March and 9.9 per cent for the first quarter of the year over comparable figures for 1964.

Wages, salaries and supplementary labor income accounts for about half the gross national product, the sum total of all goods and services produced in the country.

The GNP rose 8.9 per cent last year to $47,003,000,000 and Finance Minister Gordon has said he expects it to pass the $50,000,000,000 mark this year. Wages, salaries and supplementary labor income last year amounted to $23,418,000,000, up 8.7 per cent from the previous year.

Income was running at an annual rate of $24,128,000,000 in the last quarter of 1964. In the first quarter of last year it was at an annual rate of $22,732,000,000.

Today's announcement merely reported the income paid in the first quarter of this year. A more detailed report is to be issued later, adjusting the figure for seasonal influences and computing the annual rate.

Valiant to Step With Mile Elite

How quick is John Valiant?

The lanky Victoria boy, so thin he looks like a broomstick with ears, will find out in Vancouver in the Magic Mile June 15.

No other Canadian has run a four-minute mile but Valiant has had several brushes with it.

He holds the B.C. mile mark of 4:02.7. The only Canadian to travel the distance faster is Ergas Leps of Toronto, who holds the Canadian record at 4:01.1.

SERIES TIED'

Valiant and Leps split in two meetings last year.

The people Valiant will have on his mind in the Vancouver International meet at Empire Stadium will be Peter Snell and Archie San Romani.

Arrangements have been completed by the Greater Victoria Lawn Bowling Association to play against a group of touring Australian bowlers.

Competition will be held on June 22 at the Beacon Hill greens of Victoria Lawn Bowling Club.

The Australians—26 men and 12 women—will play against rinks selected from the six local clubs.

In trophy play, the Burnside pair of Andy Dickie and John McMillan scored a 30-8 triumph over the Canadian Pacific twosome of Charlie Hodgson and Fred Brown in the final match for the Wilkerson Shield.

Play is continuing this week in the Malkin Cup triples at Burnside and next week the Victoria West club will host a triples event for the Corby-Wiser Trophy.

The draw for the Corby-Wiser event follows:

Section 1—A. Carter (1), H. Kesterton (2), A. D. (3), A. Findlay (4), E. Jolly (5), W. Hamilton (6).

Section 2—A. Mitchell (7), G. Dean (8), G. Higuerand (9), H. Tapp (10).

Section 3—P. Hayes (11), H. Pugh (12), M. Ronfert (13), W. Crossman (14).

Section 4—W. Wood (15), C. Fleck (16), C. Wood (17), J. Green (18), W. Early (19), C. Hadley (20).

Draw 1 to play Monday. Numbers 1 to 20 to play Tuesday. All games start at 7 p.m.

FIGHT RESULT

LOS ANGELES—Bernie Magallanes, 141, Los Angeles, knocked out Ernie Contractors, 241, San Diego, 5.

Speedy Bidder Enters Belmont

NEW YORK (AP)—Early zip has been added to Saturday's renewal of the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes setting up the prospect of a nail-biter thrill stretch duel between Tom Rolfe and Dapper Dan with Hall to All ready to cash in on his stretch running charge if either falter.

As in the Preakness, Tom Rolfe will be ridden by Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B.

With the remark "I want to keep them honest," trainer Bill Winfrey announced Thursday he would enter the Wheatley Stable's Bold Bidder, a fleet son of Bold Ruler, as a running mate for Ogden Phipps' fast closing Dapper Dan.

Until Winfrey decided to start Bold Bidder, the 1½ miles of the third leg of the triple crown for three-year-olds at Aqueduct threatened to be not much more than a mere gallop for one mile with all the action coming in the last half mile.

Hour's Freedom Costs Prisoner Extra 6 Months

An hour of freedom from Colquitz Jail on Wilkinson Road cost a 40-year-old man an additional six months in jail when he appeared in Saanich police court Thursday.

Wilfred E. Coull pleaded guilty before Magistrate William Ostler to escaping on May 31.

The six-month sentence will begin when Coull finishes the remainder of an 18-month sentence imposed last April when he was convicted of theft, false pretences and fraud.

Coull walked away from a work party near the jail. He was arrested in Victoria on Quebec Street about an hour later.

It was indicated to the court that the man had escaped in order to see his wife.

When Coull was asked by Magistrate Ostler whether he intended to return to jail after seeing his wife he said: "I intended to have her turn me in."

Four youths picked up the final tab for a Saturday night beach party.

Fined $50 each for consuming liquor in a public place, Sayward Beach, were: William C. Brown, 2141 Allenby; Alta Gordon, 18; Elaine Erle, 19, and Judy Lang, 18, all of 920 Blanshard Street.

Two other youths charged in the same incident May 22 are yet to appear in court.

A young man who drove his car between $90 and 100 miles an hour to catch a ferry was fined $45 and had his licence suspended.

Christopher Howson, 4031 Saanich, pleaded guilty to speeding in a 50-mile-an-hour zone.

Armand M. Paquette, of Port Alberni, was fined $45 when he pleaded guilty to careless driving.

He was charged following an accident on Douglas Street May 26.

Melvin R. Smith, 17, of 851 Seven Oaks, was remanded to June 10 for a pre-sentence when he pleaded guilty to remain at the scene of an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Jury Rules Policeman Shot Wife, Children

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) - A psychiatrist told an inquest here Thursday he doubted Vancouver City Police Constable Leonard Hogue's brain had been damaged before the murder-suicide of the eight-member Hogue family April 19.

Dr. Robert Walter Harrington was asked if a one-inch cut above the eye Hogue received in a car accident April 19 could have caused a psychotic or mental change in a person.

"As minor as you describe it, I would have to say no," the psychiatrist replied.

Dr. Harrington was called as an expert witness at the inquest into the shooting deaths of Hogue, his wife and their six children.

The jury found that Mrs. Hogue and the children "met their deaths by homicide at the hand of Leonard Hogue and that Leonard Hogue met his death by suicide."

The reason "for this act in our opinion remains unknown," said the verdict.

Ottawa Studying Oil Industry Price Complaints

OTTAWA (CP) - The government is studying submissions from gasoline retailers and oil companies concerning prices, Justice Minister Favreau told the Commons Wednesday.

He was replying to a question by Robert Simpson (PC-Churchill) who asked about "the apparently justifiable complaints concerning excessive prices being charged for gasoline in many parts of Canada, particularly northern Manitoba."

Was the government investigating complaints about price fixing in the gasoline industry?

Mr. Favreau said the latest submissions are under study.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL ARRIVES TUESDAY

School Children Will See Vaniers

Hundreds of happy school children will be released from classes for an hour or so Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday to welcome Governor-General and Mrs. Georges Vanier to Victoria.

But only schools close to the route will be given time out to cheer.

Greater Victoria school board today announced that the following schools will close at 11 a.m. Tuesday when the vice-regal party drives from Patricia Bay Airport along the Pat Bay Highway to Cloverdale Avenue and thence along Cloverdale, Quadra, Cook, Fort, Moss and Rockland to Government House:

Glenford elementary, McKenzie elementary, Mount View secondary, Tolmie elementary, Cloverdale elementary, Quadra secondary, S. J. Willis junior secondary, Quatara primary, North Ward elementary, George Day elementary and Central junior secondary.

They will resume classes after lunch.

These schools will close Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. when the vice-regal party drives from the Empress Hotel to Government House via Government Humboldt, Vancouver, Fair-Humboldt, Vancouver, Fairfield, Foul Bay and Gonzales:

Beacon Hill elementary, South Park elementary, Sir James Douglas elementary, Margaret Jenkins elementary, Bay Junior secondary, Oak Bay and Monterey elementary.

A school board official said other schools may be added at the request of any principal who thinks it feasible for his students to line part of the routes.

"The routes we have chosen so far are such that students will have only a short distance to walk to their positions."

"Naturally," he added, "as many new national (Maple Leaf) flags should be displayed as possible."

The vice-regal party will arrive at Patricia Bay Airport Tuesday at 11 a.m. by special RCAF aircraft from Vancouver. They will stay here until Thursday returning to Vancouver at 10:45 a.m.

Operation to Blot Fingerprints Worst Mistake, Claims Convict

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — James Robert Pitts, "the man without fingerprints," admits the surgery he underwent in 1941 to remove the skin from the top of his fingers "was the worst mistake I ever made."

Now, 24 years later, he wishes he could "undo that hellish, agonizing operation."

At the age of 16 Pitts plunged into crime. Since then has spent most of his life behind bars, with stops at Alcatraz, the federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga., and several other prisons and institutions.

"If I had known then what I know now," he said, "things would have been a lot different."

Pitts, 50, is facing a 10 to 15-year prison sentence for conviction in Concord last week of armed robbery. From a Concord jail cell, he said he plans to appeal.

"I've done a lot of things, but this is one crime I didn't commit," he said.

"I swear I'm innocent."

Last Dec. 1, Pitts walked out of the Columbia, S.C., penitentiary after serving 15 years and two months of a 21-year sentence for a robbery that netted $14,500. Two North Carolina officers were waiting to return him to Concord to stand trial.

Pitts, who makes his home in Charlotte with his wife and 16-year-old daughter, wants made clear his reasons for the 1941 surgery.

"Despite what others may say," Pitts said, "I did not have the skin removed from my fingers so I could commit crimes without being detected. I did it because a New Jersey surgeon talked me into letting him experiment on such an operation; he wanted to see if the prints could be removed from a man's fingers."

Two operations were performed, one on each hand. The skin was removed from the end of Pitts' fingers and an area of skin was peeled back on the side of his chest. His fingers were attached to his side so the flesh from that area could be grafted onto his fingers. He had to keep his hand in that position for about three weeks before the stitches were clipped.

"It was like having your hand in a bed of hot coals," he recalled. "The pain was awful."

Everyone knows no fingerprints are alike since the whorls and tiny ridges have distinguishing patterns. Since the operation, Pitts' fingers have left only smudges when he touches an object.

CN Express Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian National Express cut off all express and less-than-carload freight shipments in and out of Toronto Wednesday in the wake of a walkout by 1,100 railway employees.

Everyone knows no fingerprints are alike since the whorls and tiny ridges have distinguishing patterns. Since the operation, Pitts' fingers have left only smudges when he touches an object.

The Lesage government said its recourse to the Queen was the only way to break the impasse.

Both petitions must be forwarded by Gov.-General Vanier and the federal government. The upper house has asked Ottawa not to pass it on to London.

The government leader in the upper house, George Marler, argued that the motion to the Queen was illegal because only the elected representatives of the people had the right to petition the Queen.

The petition to the Queen was a device the Liberal Government of Premier Jean Lesage decided to use when a bill to turn the legislative council into a virtual rubber stamp was rejected by the upper house.

Rover Scouts To Attend Sweden Meet

Three Victoria Rover Scouts will represent British Columbia at the 1965 European Rover moot from August 8 to 20, at Lake Vanern, Sweden.

Rover Scouts Bruce Hawkes, 1360 Richardson; David Carl, 410 Queen Anne Heights, and Douglas Cliff, studying in Lausanne, Switzerland, will spend the first eight days of the meeting touring the country.

The moot site is located between two of Sweden's largest lakes, in the Tiveden Mountain Range. The three Scouts are members of the Second Fairfield crew.

Bruce Hawkes left Victoria May 19 as a member of the Canadian-German Academic Association. He will remain on the Continent until September 8.

David Carl, who left the city May 27, will travel in Europe for three years. Douglas Cliff is pursuing a course in hotel administration at the Ecole Hoteliere in Lausanne. The three Scouts are the only Western Canadian representatives to this moot.

Queen Put on Spot By Que. Upper House

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Quebec's upper house fearing a loss of its veto power voted Wednesday to petition Queen Elizabeth to stay out of Quebec's constitutional affairs because it would cause "a state of deep uneasiness" in the province.

The petition was designed to counter-act another request by Quebec's lower house asking the Queen to amend Canada's constitution and severely reduce the upper chamber's powers.

The conflicting petitions were expected to present the Queen and her advisors—the British Government—with a touchy political problem.

The opposition Union Nationale controls 15 of the 24 seats in the appointed chamber.

PURELY PROVINCIAL

The Union Nationale has argued that the question should be decided in Quebec because it refers to a purely provincial matter.

If the two chambers are deadlocked, the issue should be taken to the people in a referendum, the opposition argues.

These arguments were joined with charges of "colonialism" against the Lesage government because of its decision to petition the Queen.

Opposition leader Daniel Johnson has, on more than one occasion told the Queen to "mind her own business" and not interfere in the controversy.

The Lesage government said its recourse to the Queen was the only way to break the impasse.

Both petitions must be forwarded by Gov.-General Vanier and the federal government.

The upper house has asked Ottawa not to pass it on to London.

The government leader in the upper house, George Marler, argued that the motion to the Queen was illegal because only the elected representatives of the people had the right to petition the Queen.

The petition to the Queen was a device the Liberal Government of Premier Jean Lesage decided to use when a bill to turn the legislative council into a virtual rubber stamp was rejected by the upper house.

PAPER QUOTES FORMER NEGRO ASTRONAUT

USAF 'Lily White' Tradition Scored

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times quotes Negro Capt. Edward J. Dwight Jr. as saying the U.S. Air Force is "petrified" about racial equality, and that Negroes' opportunities in the service therefore are stringently limited.

A Los Angeles story in The Times says the 31-year-old test pilot also made a charge of a "lily white" tradition in the air force in a telephone interview Wednesday from China Lake Naval Air Station near Los Angeles.

The Pentagon said Wednesday that Dwight, the only Negro to get through the air force space pilot school, was recommended for astronaut training but the civilian space agency for that program did not select him.

The issue arose from an articule in the June issue of Ebony magazine, a monthly devoted to Negro affairs. The article said Dwight apparently had been dropped from the space program because of a letter he wrote to the defense department charging "racial pressure" against him at the air force aerospace school.

NO QUARREL WITH NASA

The Times story says in part: Dwight said he had no quarrel with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for not selecting him as an astronaut. "I respect their decision," he said. "My objections relate entirely to the other students."

The defense department said the air force recommended 26 students for astronaut training and only seven got in.

THE AIR FORCE IS PETRIFIED

"The air force is petrified about civil rights," Dwight said. "You say 'civil rights' and anybody in authority starts backpedalling. A commander hesitates to take a stand one way or the other. He feels that he'd be ridiculed either way."

He said "the air force is a haven for equality up to a point." But beyond that, he continued, discriminatory treatment is involved in both social and professional matters. He declined to discuss instances.

The Pentagon statement, made in response to inquiries about the Ebony magazine article, said that while Dwight was at the aerospace research pilot school at Edwards Air Force Base in California he was "accorded the same rights, privileges and treatment as the other students."

The defense department said the air force recommended 26 students for astronaut training and only seven got in.

OAS MISSION RAISES PEACE HOPES IN DR

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—The arrival of a new three-man mission of the Organization of American States raised hopes here today of restoring peace to the Dominican Republic.

The mission arrived here Thursday night following a consultative meeting of OAS foreign ministers in Washington. Its task was to carry on the work begun by a previous OAS mission and by the organization's secretary-general, Jose Mora, who has remained in Santo Domingo.

A further easing of the situation in the republic's civil strife was seen in an announcement by President Johnson in Chicago Thursday that all remaining U.S. marines, some 2,100 men, would be withdrawn.

The members of the new OAS mission are Ellsworth Bunker of the United States, Elmar Penna Marino of Brazil and Ramon de Clairmont Duenas of El Salvador.

'THANKFUL TO BE FIRST'

White Reluctant to End Historic 'Walk in Space'

HAPPY mood is reflected by Mrs. Pat McDivitt, wife of astronaut James McDivitt, as she talks to newsmen before visiting Manned Spacecraft Centre in Houston.

Little Finger Subject Of Test

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The little fingers and heel bones of astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II may help answer a question that has puzzled scientists.

Russian cosmonauts suffered severely from bone demineralization—loss of density after long periods of exposure to weightlessness and inactivity.

Bone demineralization has been observed also during periods of long bed rest due to inadequate calcium intake.

X-rays were made of the right little finger and a heel bone on both spacemen before they soared into space.

As soon as possible after McDivitt and White reach the recovery ship, technicians will take comparison x-rays using a special technique called bone densitometry. Other tests will be made two days and 10 days later.

HOUSTON, Texas (AP)—Astronaut Edward White, who walked, danced and bounced through space for 20 minutes near Gemini-4, calling out "this is fun," was sad when the joyride at the end of a slender tether ended.

"It's the saddest moment of my life," White said.

White had climbed out of Gemini-4, using a space gun to manoeuvre, moved through the void, snapping pictures with two cameras.

White seemed unwilling to return to the 3.5-ton bell-shaped Gemini-4, so the command pilot, Maj. James McDivitt, pleaded:

"Okay, okay, don't wear yourself out now. Just come on in."

At one point McDivitt told the joyriding White:

MEN, MACHINES, MONEY CHANGING FACE OF EARTH AT GOLD RIVER

From Dust and Mud, a Town to Sprout

By TERRY IZZARD
Times Staff Reporter
GOLD RIVER—At the moment it's just a bald spot in a wilderness of forest land.

Giant crawler tractors trundle along the main street; the elementary school is nothing more than a water hole, while the church site hasn't even been cleared.

Yet from this dustbowl of virgin land on the northwest coast of Vancouver Island will spring a township of 3,000 people.

The foundations of an instant municipality have already been laid to house workers and their families who will move into the area when a giant pulp mill is completed.

Not that anyone here uses the word instant—it's a dirty word.

This is easy to understand after spending a few hours touring the site Thursday.

In blistering heat, men sweat to build their own town.

When the sun shines the ground dries up. Clouds of dust thrown up by trucks and tractors get into the eyes and lungs.

When it rains—and that's often—the entire site becomes a mud bath.

Despite this, there are few complaints.

For the men know that when the job is done it will be they and their families who benefit.

Like any other town, Gold River will have a movie theatre, a bowling alley, a beer parlor and a church.

No longer will the loggers' children have to make the best of a tiny schoolhouse.

Instead, there'll be an elementary school and a high school.

At present it seems impossible.

But the Tahsis Company, which conceived the idea, has $15,000,000 that says there is no such word.

Plans are already complete for construction of garden apartments, a motel and a hotel.

By mid-June, 1967, the new town will be ready for handing over.

A reeve and council will be elected and Gold River will be on the map.

But the union claims fighting the case achieved a marked improvement in labor-management relations in the Chemainus division of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

Evidence at the hearing was that on Feb. 18 the foreman in question started the green chain and the man's finger was pinched.

He lost his temper "and made a verbal attack on the foreman."

The tribunal of Reginald Moir, Edward Lawson and William Craig, was told of previous incidents involving the same man.

The board's majority finding was "an employee may not like his immediate superior or may disapprove such a superior's methods of operation, but this does not justify a refusal to accept orders or threats against the person."

Lorne Atchison claims his 41 years in the same operation as a logger is a record.

Mr. Atchison made his claim when accepting a membership pin and scroll marking 25 years' membership in the IWA Local 1-80.

Arthur Mayse

There was a time when we used to gamble with our luck and take a gasoline lantern into our battered canvas pavilion for light and warmth.

No more, though. We got scared out of that trick a couple of years ago when someone (me) jiggled the generator lever of a pressure lantern hanging in our tent doorway.

The flareup was instant and ugly; but luckily the breeze was blowing away from the tent. I hooked the rig with a pole and tossed it, still flaming, behind a log. When we investigated a cautious few minutes later, it was burning serenely, as its manufacturer intended it to, though with a cracked and well-smoked glass.

The mantle hadn't broken, which was all but miraculous. Gas lamp mantles usually break if one so much as changes his mind, and it's well to pack several spares.

We still use the lantern, cleaned up and thoroughly checked over. But outside only, where it can't scare the bejadas out of us. Used so, these rigs are unbeatable for camp use.

For tent light, an old-fashioned candle is sufficient; or if one happens to be a sleeping-bag reader, one of the excellent six-volt lanterns now on the market.

These last make a good, if expensive and rather heavy trail light.

For outdoors foot-travel at night, however, my own preference is for a homely and all but costless gadget called a "bug." Few city folk have heard of this rig, but it has probably lighted more wilderness trails in British Columbia than any other device.

It consists of a candle thrust through a hole in the side of a jam or tobacco tin, to which a wire handle is attached.

We usually have a candle bug or two kicking around our basement, and prefer them to flashlights for the occasional night stroll through our wildlands to the cove.

The woodsman's bug not only sheds a mellow golden glow, but throws the light where he needs it. This isn't a nervous hundred feet ahead, but around and just past his feet.

Since you might like sometime to make a bug, here are more detailed instructions. First, pick an empty jam, tobacco or peanut butter can in the larger size. Not a coffee can . . . those are too shallow.

Haggle a hole slightly less than candle-size midway along one side; then with hammer and nail, puncture a dozen or so draft-holes in the bottom. Attach a fore-and-aft handle cut from stovepipe wire or an old coat hanger, and hint up an ordinary white paraffin candle.

Don't jam the candle too far through the hole, and when you light it, no need to worry about the soot which will at once form on the tin. A bug isn't seasoned until it's properly sooted.

Follow these directions and you will have a light that nothing less than a hurricane or submersion under water will extinguish entirely.

As for campstoves, the variety is now so bewildering, that I'll merely state my preference for those which burn "white gas" under pressure, and add that a small charcoal burner is a most useful adjunct. In spots where fires can't be lighted, a camp-sized barbecue or its Japanese ancestor, the hibachi, provides supplementary cooking space and a welcome source of warmth.

One warning here: unless you court carbon monoxide poisoning, never cuddle up to a charcoal burner in a tent.

But for warmth and cheer, nothing beats a fire; and the Forest Service men who first thought to instal handy iron grates in our provincial park campsites deserve a special blessing.

You can cook on them, get warm by them, and dry clothes at them . . . although for this last necessity, I recommend three trips through the spin-driers in the nearest laundromat!

CARE FOR A SWIM? Eight years ago you could swim here, says E. W. Izard, 980 Arundel, whose Portage Inlet home borders on algae and weeds—newcomers since 1957. He blames mess on nitrogen from septic tank and treated sewage effluent. Second picture, up the creek, is rubbish like this, viewed by Capt. James Barr, 965 Trans-Canada Highway, who complains Colquitz has never been cleaned out. At other places, weeds, tires, planks and bits of metal clog channel. Effluent from Northridge sewage treatment plant flows past here to Portage Inlet and Gorge.

Saanich Putting Houses Before Health—Wurtele

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele today said Saanich gives precedence to subdivision expansion over the health and welfare of Gorge waterway district.

He spoke critically again of Saanich's plan to empty an additional 35,000 daily gallons of treated sewage effluent into Colquitz Creek, then into Portage Inlet and the waterway.

"They say we can't block progress," Reeve Wurtele said. "I'm building a new house, and I can't do it without sewer connections."

The health and welfare of a district is far more important than development of a subdivision," the reeve said.

TEMPORARY

It has been pointed out that the enlarged treatment plant for Northridge subdivision would be only a temporary measure, until trunk sewers can be laid. But the earliest this can be expected is about three years.

Provincial pollution control board has approved the Saanich application pending protests. District residents are up in arms and Thursday formed a new anti-pollution association.

Esquimalt council will consider Monday whether to make formal protest.

Victoria city parks committee last week recommended that council authorize its solicitor to oppose the Saanich application this month.

'We'll Start All Over' Says Wurtele

Esquimalt is ready to resume a mail-a-motion talk immediately with View Royal residents, Reeve A. C. Wurtele said today.

His statement followed Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's announcement Thursday that the two areas should start afresh in negotiating a union.

Mr. Campbell said he was following a recommendation by a provincial commission studying the merger scheme.

All steps taken up to now should be disregarded, the commission recommended.

DEAD ISSUE

Reeve Wurtele said Esquimalt's petition, which officially sought a municipal merger with the panhandle area of View Royal, is now a dead issue.

"This is fine with me, but it is too bad it has been thrown to one side," he said.

If it is in the interests of the majority, then Esquimalt will have to accept it, Reeve Wurtele said.

Esquimalt council is ready to meet View Royal residents right away, he added.

'PUSSYFOOTING'

The reeve had earlier accused the provincial commission of "pussyfooting" on the matter.

Esquimalt residents approved by 72 per cent majority the proposal to merge with part of the View Royal district. Subsequent approaches on the matter bogged down.

"This, I am assured, will make it possible for the Esquimalt council and the group representing the citizens of View Royal to meet on an equal footing and free of any previous entanglements," Mr. Campbell said.

He said any agreement reached would be put to a vote in both areas.

Rites Monday For Retired Businessman

Oliver M. Prentice, general accountant and business executive in Victoria since 1919, died Thursday evening at his home, 4312 Houlihan Place.

Mr. Prentice was born in Greenwich, Md., in 1885, came to Canada as a young man. He served overseas with the Canadian Army during the First World War.

He was associated with David Spencer Stores for many years.

He was secretary-treasurer and director of Island Tug and Barge and associated companies for 20 years. He retired in 1963 as financial consultant.

A member of the Four-Ex veterans' organization and St. Andrew's Lodge No. 49, Mr. Prentice was also a Rotarian and a Shriner. He belonged to St. Dunstan's Church, Gordon Head.

Mr. Prentice is survived by the widow, Margaret Janet; a daughter, Mrs. Edward Cunningham, and a granddaughter Linda.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2:15 p.m. at McCallum Brothers' main chapel. The Venerable Archdeacon A. E. G. Hendry will officiate, followed by cremation.

He said fact-finding and publicity committees were formed. Their aim is to get federal, provincial and municipal government action to have the entire watershed draining into the basin severed.

"It's a major issue with the whole area. It's their heritage we are squandering here," Mr. Roberts said.

In city court Thursday:

Nickel Payoff Costs Club Fine of $200

A city detective made a nickel when he played an illegal slot machine in the Alano Club Tuesday, he said in city court today.

The club was fined $200 for keeping a gaming house. Magistrate William Oster also ordered that two "one-armed bandits" found on its premises be destroyed.

Detective Walter Calwell said he and Detective Lyle Somers went to the club, a social centre for members of Alcoholics Anonymous, at 1402 Broad Street.

He said the machines were in a room just off the coffee shop.

"I put a nickel in one machine and got back two nickels," he said.

GUILTY PLEA

Don Anderson, lawyer for the club, entered a guilty plea to the charge. He said the club was a non-profit organization and money made from the slot machines was used to help defray expenses.

Mr. Anderson said the slot machines were in use for 15 years and this showed a "previous pattern of tolerance" by the police.

The magistrate said "it is a pity that a club which does such good work has to resort to illegal activity" to support itself.

Jensen News, 644 Yates, which was also charged with keeping a gaming house, pleaded not guilty. Police allege that two pinball machines found on the premises are illegal.

The Jensen case will go to trial Aug. 14.

Mayor Goes Into Huddle On Centenary

Just back from a Confederation Centennial seminar in Ottawa, Mayor R. B. Wilson today went into secret session with administrative officials.

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis also was present.

Neither the mayor nor Reeve Curtis had comment to make following the meeting.

Mayor Wilson has expressed concern in the past for delay in selection of a Greater Victoria centennial project to mark the 100th anniversary of Confederation in 1967.

It has also been pointed out that the amount of money available to the capital region would not permit the type of project thought suitable by Saanich—a major sports stadium.

Victoria aldermen have considered informally the advisability of going ahead with its own project, the restoration of Royal Athletic Park.

Latest detailed suggestion comes from regional basketball associations, which proposes a $375,000 indoor sports auditorium for 3,000 initial spectators in permanent seating, plus another 3,000 in temporary seating.

Land about 10 acres would cost an additional $75,000, it is suggested.

BUILDING CONTRACT IMMINENT

Contract is expected to be announced any day for Victoria's new "million dollar plus" Unemployment Insurance and Income Tax office.

The office block will be built on Johnson-Vancouver-Pandora property.

Government officials have confirmed the letting of the contract to a local construction firm but say they are not yet ready to make the official announcement.

"That," said a spokesman, "will have to be made by the politicians."

Milk now sells for 25 cents a quart delivered.

The Vancouver price boost—from 26 cents to 27 cents—was announced today by G. O. Okulitch, acting general manager of the Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association.

He said the increase was forced on the dairies by a new labor agreement which he claimed would cost distributors and producers $3,000,000 over the next three years.

MAYBE MORE

"There certainly will be an increase of not less than one cent a quart," Mr. Okulitch said. "And it could be more."

The new labor agreement, to be ratified next week, calls for a 20-cent hourly increase each year for three years. Average wage in the industry at present is $242 an hour.

Spokesmen for major distributors in Victoria were reticent this morning when asked what the possibilities were of a similar increase in Victoria.

Northwestern Creamery, Palm Dairies and Shepherd's Dairy all enter labor negotiations this fall.

CENT LESS

A spokesman for Northwestern said he had no comment on the Vancouver price increase but was quick to point out that in Greater Victoria milk has always sold for a cent a quart less than in Vancouver.

It will now sell for at least two cents a quart less delivered to the house.

Indoor Farms took the same stand.

"No comment on the price increase or the possibilities of a similar increase here," the spokesman said. "We have our own labor negotiations coming up this fall."

Other dairies polled in a telephone survey voiced the same answer.

None of the spokesmen would commit themselves to a "yes" or "no" answer on the possibility of an increase.

Navy Ship Movements

HMCS Orpheus leaves at 3 p.m. today for a 10-day tour of the Far East.

HMCS Oriole is en route to the Far East.

HMC Ships MacKenzie and Stettler are en route to the Far East.

HMCS St. Croix will return June 6 from manoeuvres in local waters.

In port, HMC Ships Grilse, Saskatchewan, Yukon, Antigonish, Beacon Hill, Saguenay, Yulon, Saseyval and New Glasgow.

PEANUTS

"I SUPPOSE YOU'LL MISS ME, TOO, BUT I GUESS WE..."

Unexpected Guests Upset Dinner Plans

By PENNY SAVER

Am I nervous? I received a long-distance phone call yesterday, from several out-of-town relatives who have decided they are coming to our fair city for a visit, and I'm still shaking! These people are very correct about everything, especially meals, and when they said they would be arriving Sunday, my mind went a complete blank about what to serve for supper.

Well, I finally decided to fall back on my old stand-by. What's almost the traditional Sunday meal? Roast beef and Yorkshire pudding!

Unfortunately, I have never learned how to make Yorkshire pudding correctly. It either turns out light and fluffy—with a layer of dough in the centre—or hard and tough. I have a solution, though. It is a new Yorkshire pudding mix, selling for 29 cents. This mix contains all the ingredients necessary to make a good old-fashioned pudding. You just add water.

Mix ingredients and water, then bake for 35 minutes, following directions. When finished, you have piping hot, fluffy little buns—12 of 'em. Dripping with gravy, they're delicious!

If you don't have time to bake potatoes for dinner, try this solution. I have discovered tiny frozen baby potatoes which you place around the base of the roast to bake with the meat. All the rich flavor of the meat permeates the potato and they cook to a crisp, firm golden brown.

The potatoes, selling for 49 cents a package, make a delicious addition to a stew, too.

If you like a spicy accent to a Sunday dinner, here it is—frozen sliced mushrooms.

Add these delicately spiced mushroom morsels, selling for 99 cents for a large, large package, to the roast gravy. Or fry them—wonderful for a side dish. If you prefer, you can simmer them in melted butter as a vegetable.

Here's a little tip for Mom. I noticed, selling at two containers for 49 cents, a new type of orange drink, made especially for children. Non-carbonated, this contains no sugar to harm children's teeth. It is delicious—and the youngsters will love the jar it comes in. The containers are double-decker oranges, made of unbreakable plastic. (My youngest niece loves to play with 'em in her bath.)

Shows Signs of Weakening, Dieter Eyes Tarts, Snacks

Q. I have been on your diet for three months and have lost 27 pounds. I cheat once in a while, of course, but am quite pleased. I feel much better now. My only trouble is after supper.

How many calories are in bread sticks and strawberry tarts?

A. Let's put it this way! There are too many. Don't even toy with the idea. You are short and you weighed Lowman over 200 pounds to start with. As you yourself know, you still have a lot of weight to lose.

You have done a wonderful job and certainly could not have cheated very much. However, I feel that you are weakening when you ask about these calories. Many women find that the before-bed snack and the snack while looking at TV, when all the rest of the family is munching on wonderful items, are problems.

Have some carrots or celery sticks with a little garlic salt on them, a low-calorie soft drink and some cauliflower buds, dipped very lightly into sour cream which is seasoned with curry. You can munch on the buds, and sticks to your heart's content without adding much to your daily calorie intake, and they are delicious. A glass of skim milk with a teaspoon of chocolate syrup won't sabotage your hopes.

Q. Is there any special food which will increase the size of the bust? I have heard that there is. I am 15 years old and want to have nice curves.

A. The bust is a natural part of the body. It is not something that can be increased by dieting. It is not something that can be decreased by dieting.

Q. I have heard that brushing the hair is good for oily hair as well as dry hair. Mine is oily, but when I brush it regularly it gets oilier. I have been trying this for a week.

A. The stimulation which brushing or massage provides is corrective to either a dry or an oily scalp. This tends to normalize either type. The brushing does spread the oil over the hair, but in time the condition should improve.

DEAR ABBY...

It's a Dog's Life!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My French poodle is going to be four years old next Sunday. I would like to give her a surprise birthday party and invite some of her little playmates. Cheri isn't just an ordinary dog. She's an aristocrat and I have the papers to prove it. What should I serve?

DEAR MADAME: I think he is wrong about his wants to keep you close to him for only selfish reasons. But the most important thing in your life is your relationship with your husband. And if you can't make him see it your way and let him go to work with his sincere approval then give up the idea.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since Bud and I have been married we have invited his parents to our home every Sunday for dinner. Bud told me that next Sunday some of his business friends will be in town with their wives, and he wanted me to prepare a nice Sunday for them. He asked me to call his mother and ask her and Dad if they would come to dinner on Friday instead because we were going to entertain some business friends on Sunday. I did as Bud asked me to do, and his mother said if she and Dad weren't good enough for Bud's business friends on Sunday, they didn't care to come on Friday. Then she slammed the receiver down. I tried to call her back but she wouldn't answer the phone. Why should she be so unreasonable? She knows we have a small apartment with only six dining room chairs. I called my husband and told him what happened and he told me to forget it! How can I forget it? I don't want hard feelings with my in-laws, Abby. I'm just sick over this. What should I do?

BUD'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: We all have "off days." Your mother-in-law apparently had one. Listen to your husband, dear. He knows his mother better than you do.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D. IN MIDDLEFIELD: Honesty is, and always will be, the best policy. Tell your boy friend that the biggest block to success is his head.

Royal Wedding In Offing?

VIENNA (Reuters) — An Austrian newspaper claimed today that Crown Princess Beatrix of The Netherlands is meeting her "secret fiance" here to prepare for their wedding.

The princess arrived here Wednesday and the independent Kronenzeitung said that two days ago a Vienna hotel reservation was made in the name of "legation Counsel Amberg."

"Is this a pure chance?" the paper asked. There have been rumors that Claus von Amberg, a West German diplomat, is engaged to the princess.

The Dutch embassy in Vienna declined to comment because officials said Beatrix came here for a private visit.

The paper said she was staying with a friend.

In The Hague, the Dutch royal household denied that Beatrix was in Vienna to meet von Amberg, officially described as her "very good friend."

Her parents, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard, issued an appeal that she be "left in peace to make up her mind."

PETTICOAT PATTER

By Judy Creighton

The daddy and mummy in our house are presently getting a steady diet of green eggs and ham!

Sound strange? To parents of eager-beaver bookworms, it's undoubtedly most familiar—it's that amazing library for children by Dr. Seuss. I am no book reviewer, but this modern collection of "beginner books" is certainly a far cry from the good old fairy tales we old parents swallowed in at the ripe age of three.

In his book, "Green Eggs and Ham," Dr. Seuss has hit on the most fantastic "learn to read" program I've ever seen. The first two pages show an adorable creature standing on his pet dog and bearing the sign "I am Sam". The third page shows the character confronting a larger creature who bears an astounded expression on its face as it watches "Sam" with his new sign which reads "Sam I am".

New Way of Learning

On and on through the book the words, Sam, ham, I am, green eggs, etc., are spelled out by our hero "Sam" to that larger creature who gets more and more annoyed as we turn the pages.

The trick to these books seems very simple. The illustrations and words are all individual, so a child can recognize the combination of the two. But most of all there is the repetition and the delightful manner in which the story is put across.

A bright boy or girl could be a master reader before the age of six with an expert's vocabulary to boot!

However, I still feel nostalgic about those wonderful fairy tales of old—and anyway somehow I can't stomach green eggs and ham, even if the next generation can!

IODE Ranks Increased By Regiment's Chief

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mrs. J. Neil Gordon of Toronto Wednesday was elected president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, a women's service organization with 28,000 members.

The attractive mother of five was elected to the post at the IODE's 65th annual convention.

Mrs. Gordon joined the order at the suggestion of her husband's commanding officer.

When her husband enlisted in the Queen's Own Rifles in 1939, his commanding officer suggested that all the wives should belong to one women's organization.

"We all joined the IODE. I have never regretted the step and thoroughly enjoy the work," she said in an interview.

Mrs. Gordon believes that each person owes something to his community in service, and there always will be a place for the volunteer worker.

Asked if she has any immediate plans for the IODE, Mrs. Gordon said she hopes to see an increase in membership because "our work is so diversified that there's something for everybody."

A campaign to increase IODE membership by 1967 was suggested at the annual convention.

Mrs. Gordon especially is interested in getting young members into the IODE. There is a trend to the formation of junior chapters for girls from the ages of 12 to 18, she said.

"The IODE is less regimented than Brownies or Guides, and it's wonderful for teenagers to do volunteer work. It gives them an idea of others' problems and helps make them better people."

She said she hopes the IODE can bring more Commonwealth students to Canada for university study. Last year three Commonwealth students studied in Canada on IODE scholarships.

"It is a worthwhile, though costly project. The future of the world depends a lot on this type of exchange, if we can help these students to see the democratic way of life is superior."

Mrs. Gordon, who enjoys good cooking and knitting, had done much of her volunteer work with children.

"Volunteer work is rewarding and satisfying. You are a more interesting person if you have other interests beyond those of your home and family."

Before dinner, Miss Jean Johnston said grace.

Later the annual meeting was held in the club lounge.

New officers for the coming year include Mrs. H. Edwards, president; Mrs. N. Baker, first vice-president; Mrs. J. Cunningham, second; Mrs. I. Van Cleef, third; Mrs. J. Christensen, secretary, and Mrs. M. Inglis, zone representative.

Miss Marion Bradley presented the retiring president, Mrs. E. Eldridge with her past-president's pin.

McPHERSON PLAYHOUSE

Convention Worth Proved

Victoria civic recreation manager Jack Morgan Thursday said this week's Municipal Officers' Association conference proved the value of McPherson Playhouse as a small convention centre.

He said he had heard favorable comment from the more than 150 official delegates attending the three-day meeting ended Wednesday—first such convention to be held in the theatre.

But the real test of theatre facilities for this purpose, Mr. Morgan said, will be in September when some 800 delegates to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention will make use of McPherson Playhouse.

Theatre manager Erik Perth said that for small conventions, the playhouse offers a "perfect" range of facilities—comfortable seats, full stage facilities, 300 movable chairs, space for closed committee meetings, a sound system including inducto-tion transistor hearing aids applicable to simultaneous translation service, a coffee and refreshment concession, central location, pleasant surroundings in Centennial Square and, soon, parking and catering adjuncts.

Who in the world knows more about beer than an Englishman?

Heartily.

Alfie Wells has been drinking beer in and around Bromley for 40 years.

You could call him an expert and few men would dare argue the matter.

That's why we were so pleased with Alfie's reaction to Canada's own Gold Keg Beer. He gave it a thorough test. Then he gave it his blessing.

Alfie said: "It's a luv'ly beer" and after another wee sample he added, "A man could hardly do better."

In Operation Gold Keg hundreds of Englishmen like Alfie Wells have reported that they rate Gold Keg

'Multiples' Nudge $16 Million Mark

Multiple listing sales of real estate missed $16,000,000 by a whisker, D. G. J. Humphries, retiring president of the Victoria Real Estate Board, said Thursday.

In his annual report to the group at an Empress Hotel banquet Thursday night Mr. Humphries said multiple listing sales in this area had increased from $10,048,472 in 1962-63 to $15,999,654 in 1963-64.

"We are still only slightly higher than the Okanagan-Mainland Board," he told the realtors, "and they have openly stated they expect to pass us in 1965."

Mr. Davis said the federal government is trying to breach "this large gap in their thinking" with its new Canada Development Corporation.

MUTUAL FUND'

Describing the CDC as "a sort of mutual fund," Mr. Davis said it would give all Canadians the opportunity to invest in the "small man's new investment agency."

Prior to his speech Mr. Davis said he saw little hope of British Columbia or any other provinces being granted the right to operate a provincial bank.

"It would create chaos on the financial scene if we had 10 provincial banks," he said. "And there is no doubt that if B.C. were granted a bank Quebec and the other provinces would soon follow."

"Just think of what would happen if a tight money policy were being considered by the nation. A federal-provincial conference would have to be called—with maybe one or two provinces abstaining—and goodness knows how long it would take to reach an agreement."

The federal government must retain control of the nation's financial policy and it could no longer do that if each province had its own bank. I can foresee a situation where Canada would grind financially to a halt every time financial policy was discussed and the horse-trading session started."

Mr. Davis was referring to Premier Bennett's demand that the offshore right problem, now before the court, be withdrawn.

"We need more banks in B.C. and more head offices,"

Mr. Davis added. "But they should be entirely divorced and from politics of any kind."

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Broadway Bulletin Board—Clark Gable's beautiful widow, Kay, has been dating Dr. Robert Helmer so consistently, the movieland romance-watchers wouldn't be at all surprised if they announced wedding plans. And all Kay's friends seem to approve the match; they find the doctor extremely attractive and suitable, and think it would be a fine thing for Kay and her child by "The King" to have a husband and father after the long and lonely period of mourning. . . . Ava Gardner, restless in Europe these days, plans a long stay—perhaps half a year—in South America. She'll take a house in Rio de Janeiro as her base.

A large British public relations outfit is negotiating a deal to represent Red China. One of the big switches in their presentation calls for them to open offices in the United States to distribute propaganda film here that would give the Communists behind the Bamboo Curtain a more favorable "image" to Americans. Some organization has started to help in that direction already. The audience at the opening of the movie "China" was startled when loud cheering was heard coming from the rear of the theater as Mao Tse-tung appeared on the screen. Those who turned heads discovered the claque was entirely non-Chinese. . . . One of the West Side's most famous nightclubs may call it a day after the World Fair closes. It's the same old story: no late business in the area, and that type of entertainment is now old hat. . . . Candice Bergen (Edgar's daughter) cabled a congratulatory message to Terrence Stamp when he won the best actor award at the Cannes Film Festival for his performance in "The Collector," but cover girl Jean Shrimpton—affectionately known as "The Shrimp"—is a more practical type when it comes to Getting Her Man. She didn't have to cable. She was right there with him when he got the good news.

The Concord Hotel has scored one of its biggest coups in locking up the world premiere of Marion Brando's new flicker, "Morituri"—with Marlon himself junketing there with the press, in person and in the flesh. It's hard to predict which will be wilder, the customers when they glimpse Marion strolling through the lobby (which is only a little bigger than Grand Central Terminal) or Marlon's reactions when he gets the guided tour of the three golf courses, the 4,000-seat night-club, and the 5,000-seat dining room. . . . Vincent Lopez, the bandleader who doubles as a seer, is taking bows around Broadway. He picked Clay to win "in less than three rounds."

Maureen O'Sullivan gracefully parries reporters' questions about her daughter Mia's romance with Frank Sinatra, but those close to her say she is quite disturbed about it. The great difference in their ages isn't the prime consideration.

SOLUTION MONDAY

Hole, With Elevator, Quarters, for Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) Want to buy concrete-lined, 160-foot-deep hole in the ground, complete with air-conditioned living quarters and elevator?

Well, this month the U.S. general services administration expects to offer for sale perhaps as many as 148 missile silos, some of them equipped with large underground living quarters.

The silos cost the government a total of about $1,500,000, or from around $12,000,000 to $25,000,000 each.

From the standpoint of cost and number of similar installations involved, the disposal effort will be the largest yet for the U.S. government's housekeeping agency.

Maureen always has been deeply religious, and the prospect of Mia marrying a divorced man would naturally make her unhappy.

Robert Goulet is set to do a television series—adventure-type—in 1966, when he'll have the time to devote to a once-a-week show. . . . Joe Levine had no sooner finished the jazzy (and presumably sexy) Harlow than he signed to produce a new family film titled The Daydreamers, based on characters in the Hans Christian Andersen stories. The picture will be done in a spectacular new process and is scheduled to have its premiere at Easter time next year. Although it's far from completed, Joe already has received huge offers from networks for the television rights.

Andy—sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Pat Krautkramer, age 10, of Papillion, Neb., for her question:

Is it true that tornadoes never strike in a valley?

When the Weather Bureau warns that a tornado is headed your way, run for the storm cellar. If you live on the wide-open prairies, scot to shelter as fast as you can. If you live in the valleys of the Mississippi, Ohio or lower Missouri rivers, run even faster.

A tornado is a wild whirlwind on a rampage. It is a small weather event, but no other storm can equal its furious powers of destruction. And the tornado, also called the twister or the cyclone, strikes suddenly. Even our best weather information can give only short notice of its approach. Weather experts, however, know when conditions are likely to produce these wild storms, and people in tornado territory are then alerted. No sensible person wastes a moment when warned that a tornado is about to strike. He hurries to the cyclone cellar or to some other nearby tornado shelter.

Every year North America is struck by perhaps 500 of these dusty storm funnels. They strike most often in the midwestern states, but they also occur once in a while in other states. The major tornado territory is crossed by the great Mississippi and Ohio rivers and by the lower Missouri. There are other rivers also, and all these rivers meander through valleys of their own making.

And the tornado, also called the twister or the cyclone, strikes suddenly. Even our best weather information can give only short notice of its approach. Weather experts, however, know when conditions are likely to produce these wild storms, and people in tornado territory are then alerted. No sensible person wastes a moment when warned that a tornado is about to strike. He hurries to the cyclone cellar or to some other nearby tornado shelter.

Every year North America is struck by perhaps 500 of these dusty storm funnels. They strike most often in the midwestern states, but they also occur once in a while in other states. The major tornado territory is crossed by the great Mississippi and Ohio rivers and by the lower Missouri. There are other rivers also, and all these rivers meander through valleys of their own making.

Is it true that tornadoes never strike in a valley?

When the Weather Bureau warns that a tornado is headed your way, run for the storm cellar. If you live on the wide-open prairies, scot to shelter as fast as you can. If you live in the valleys of the Mississippi, Ohio or lower Missouri rivers, run even faster.

A tornado is a wild whirlwind on a rampage. It is a small weather event, but no other storm can equal its furious powers of destruction. ## Official to Probe Firing of Nazi

leader of party

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario human rights commission went to bat Thursday for a self-styled Nazi leader who says he was fired from his job because of his "creed."

W. John Beattie, 23, who calls himself leader of Toronto's Nazi party, complained to the commission last week that he had lost his $75-a-week job at a surgical supply firm last April because he is a Nazi. He demanded commission action against alleged violation of the human rights code's sections outlawing job discrimination on grounds of creed.

Daniel Hill, director of the commission, said Thursday he has appointed Herbert Sohn, a commission officer, to talk to Beattie's former employer and try to bring about a voluntary settlement.

"If we can negotiate it, we will," Mr. Hill said. "Nazis get the same treatment as anyone else."

Although the commission does not define the word "creed" as including political beliefs, Mr. Hill said, Beattie has the right to apply to the courts to reverse that decision.

Insurance Group Has 'The Facts'

Union leader Murray Drew said today an insurance industry spokesman knows the facts about an Indian's insurance problems.

"He has the facts," said Murray Drew, president of the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America, "He has had the facts quite some time."

The spokesman for the All Canada Insurance Federation, Ken Malthouse of Vancouver, said Thursday he would be delighted to look into the case "if given the facts."

The case in dispute involves a man whose regular insurance policy was cancelled and who, according to Mr. Drew, was asked to pay 50 per cent above his old premium for assigned risk coverage at another company.

Within the next year, these and 23 other senators will make a decision:

Walter M. Aseltine, 78, (PC-Saskatchewan); Arthur Beauvais, 86, (L-Manitoba); W. A. Boucher, 75, (L-Saskatchewan); J. A. Buchanan, 78, (PC-Alberta); T. A. Crerar, 88, (L-Manitoba); J. W. de B. Farris, 76, (L-British Columbia); F. W. Fershaw, 82, (L-Alberta); James Gladstone, 77, (PC-Alberta);

Nancy Hodges, 76, (L-British Columbia); S. S. McKeen, 78, (L-British Columbia); Thomas Reid (L-British Columbia); and T. H. Wood (L-Saskatchewan).

He said a representative of the insurance company told him he would be glad to discuss the matter with Mr. Drew anytime.

From what he could tell of the situation, the man was entitled—if a clear risk—to assigned risk coverage of $50,000, including driving to work, for about $50.

36 INVOLVED

Senators Have Year On Retirement Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—Within the next year, 36 senators will decide whether to leave their $15,000-a-year lifetime appointments for an $8,000 annual pension or remain in their seats for life.

The bill providing for the retirement of senators became law when it received royal assent Wednesday. It gives members of the upper chamber a year in which to decide their future, and 36 will qualify for the pension within that year. The voluntary retirement age is 75.

One of the weighty factors in the decision facing the 36 is their personal financial position in the event of death. There is a bit of gambling involved.

While $15,000 is far better than $8,000, this advantage only applies so long as the senator lives. If he dies in office, his widow receives nothing; if he dies on pension, his widow will get one-third of the pension until she dies or remarries.

While all present senators—now numbering 95—will have the option of staying on or retiring, future senators will not. All senators appointed from now on will retire at 75.

COVERS DISABILITY

Besides going to senators over 75, the $8,000 annual payment will be available to any senator who must resign—at any age—because of some "permanent infirmity."

From initial comments, it appears as though most of the eligible senators have not decided whether they will step out of the red chamber. Of 14 senators questioned a few weeks ago, seven said they hadn't made any decision. Four indicated:

Woman's Bid For Ministry Supported

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Toronto Centre Presbytery delegates Thursday rejected a recommendation by a senior committee and supported a Toronto woman's application to be ordained into the United Church ministry.

Rev. Egerton Young, president of the presbytery, said the Toronto conference can be expected to ordain Mrs. William Bartram, 26, former student assistant at London's Robinson United Church.

The matter came up during the annual meeting of the church's London conference which ends today.

The mother of one was refused application by a committee of the Toronto conference. Tuesday. It questioned her motives for ordination and suggested a two-year postponement of the application.

It indicated that Mrs. Bartram was seeking not so much the glory of God as self-fulfillment. They referred the matter to the presbytery.

WORK STARTS ON PEACE POWERHOUSE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Work starts today on the giant underground powerhouse at the northern Peace River dam. British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority announced Thursday it awarded a $77,000,000 contract for the construction to the low bidder, a consortium headed by Northern Construction Co. of Vancouver.

The consortium already is doing work at the site and thus is in a position to start work on the powerhouse immediately.

The contract is believed to be the largest single one ever awarded in Canada. It is larger than the $73,000,000 contract awarded for building of the dam.

WHY BENNETT NOT CALLED TO WITNESS STAND?

BENNETT INVITES REDS TO B.C. TRADE FAIR

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

HONG KONG—Premier Bennett today invited Red China to send exhibitors and buyers to Vancouver International Trade Fair. He said Chinese representatives indicated they would accept.

Bennett met Y. H. Yu and T. Chau of the Chinese Resources Company, maintained here by the Communists.

The premier said B.C. could buy a variety of products from China and that China also needs a large variety of goods.

He indicated any B.C.-China deals might involve deferred payments such as in the wheat agreements.

Bennett said the meeting, which included other ministers who are on the mission, was "very valuable" in breaking the ice but said no firm commitments were made.

White Describes Stroll in Space

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—While Gemini IV was circling the earth today in the second day of its four-day mission, Edward H. White II was chatting with capsule communicator Virgil (Gus) Grissom.

White re-lived some moments of his space stroll Thursday and was brought up to date on terrestrial doings. He had taken controls of the spaceship while command pilot James McDivitt slept.

The following interview occurred as the craft passed Carnarvon station in Australia shortly before 8 a.m.

White: "Looks like Jim's corks off pretty well. He hasn't stirred now, the last hour and a half."

Grissom: "Okay, I had a news release here for him about Mike's baseball team. Do you want to take it and pass it onto him?"

White: "Yes, pass up."

Grissom: "Okay, The Hawks won their pee-wee league (baseball game) 3-2. They beat the Falcons."

Woman Slain
By Bullet
In Back

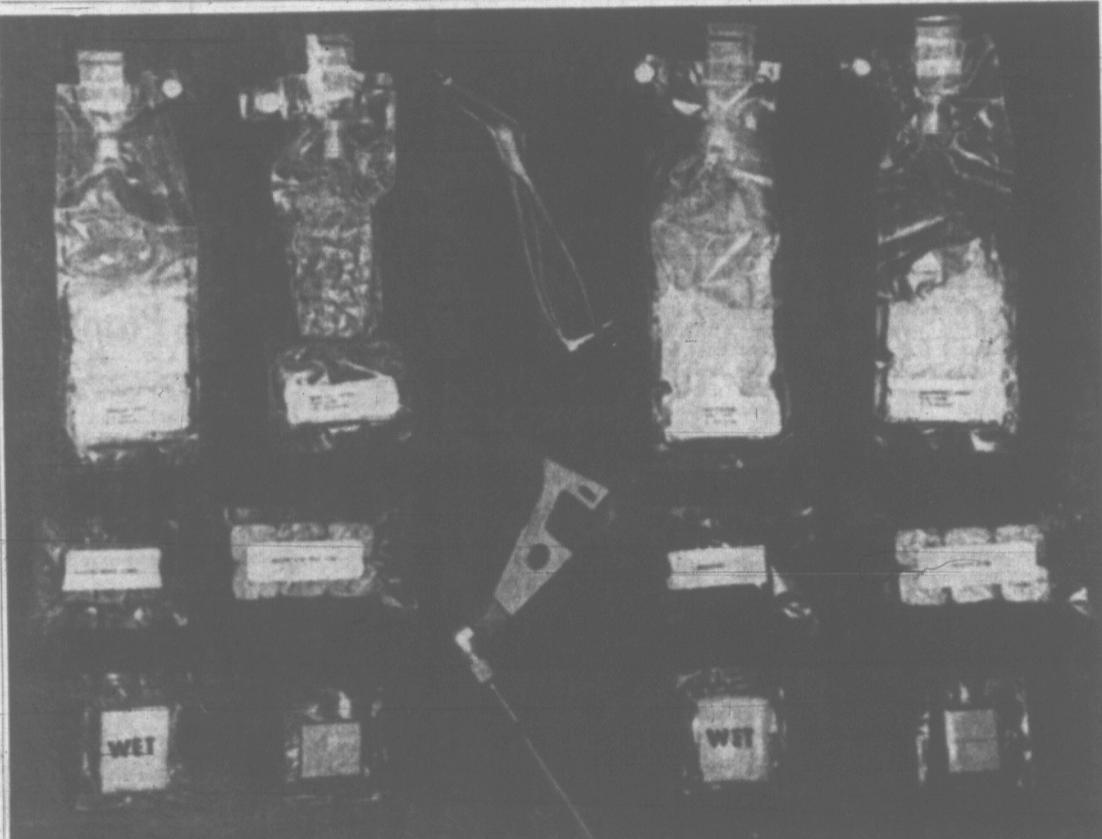

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A 29-year-old woman was shot and killed today as she walked along a quiet residential street in nearby North Surrey.

Marlene Beatrice Porterfield was felled by a single shot. Police arrested a man driving a three-ton truck and confiscated a large-calibre rifle.

Frederick Myron Turner, 39, was later charged with capital murder. He was remanded to June 11 when he appeared in court.

Police said Miss Porterfield was shot in the back from a distance of about 50 yards as she walked with Mr. and Mrs. Don Nugent of Surrey.

Gemini Whirls Into 2nd Day

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White whirled into the second day of their marathon space mission today, their spirits high and their flight plan back on schedule after some hectic early hours during which White took a celestial stroll.

The Mission Control Centre said everything appeared favorable for the Gemini IV space craft to complete its full 97-hour, 30-minute mission.

If there are no hitches, the longest U.S. manned space flight will end at 1:06 p.m. Monday with a parachute splashdown in the Atlantic Ocean, 400 miles southwest of Bermuda.

White: "On the night pass?"

Grissom: "Yeah. You said you could see."

White: "No. I couldn't. You

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Rangers today acquired right wing John McKenzie and centre Ray Cullen in a six-player trade with the Chicago Black Hawks.

In return for the two forwards, the Rangers dealt right wing Dick Messner, left wing Dave Richardson, defence man Tracy Pratt and forward Mel Pearson to Chicago.

Three Killed in Bank Robbery

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuters)—Police armed with sub-machine-guns kept watch as Chinese Premier Chou En-lai was driven through cheering crowds into Dar Es Salaam today at the beginning of a four-day visit to Tanzania.

World Hails White's Feat

LONDON (Reuters)—News papers and commentators around the world today paid tribute to America's Gemini IV flight and the "walk" in space by Maj. Edward White.

Details of White's flight with Maj. James McDivitt were reported at length in most Western newspapers. Moscow radio and East European news media gave factual reports of the launching at Cape Kennedy, Fla., and of the flight.

The Dutch radio relayed a direct broadcast from the Gemini launching site. This was followed by hourly progress surveys.

Mr. Murray said the earlier testimony quoted Mr. Gunderson as saying that Williamson had written many letters for the premier and in this case he had only exceeded his authority.

The witness, who identified himself as vice-president of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, was called during rebuttal by the crown after closing of the case for the defence.

Mr. Gunderson was told by crown counsel George Murray that Williamson had earlier testified that he had met Mr. Gunderson Feb. 17 and "that you had told him there was no case against him."

NDP'S FISHER

Head of RCMP Under Heavy Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Douglas Fisher, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, launched a sharply-worded assault Thursday night on RCMP Commissioner G. B. McClellan.

He charged that recent evidence suggested Canada's No. 1 Mountie had "a bit of bigotry and bias in his soul," lacked appreciation for parliamentary democracy and warranted "a good close look" by the government.

Mr. Fisher's criticism, made during a Commons adjournment debate, drew equally strong support for Commissioner McClellan from Justice Minister Favreau.

He said recent remarks by the commissioner, which drew Mr. Fisher's ire, were fully warranted and added that there was no constructive criticism in referring to "a devoted public servant in contemptuous terms."

Mr. Fisher, MP for Port Arthur, based his criticism on two recent developments. One was a Toronto Telegram interview in which Mr. McClellan said there are "sinister forces" working to destroy the RCMP; the other a letter to the CBC written by the commissioner complaining about a television commentary.

The reference to bigotry

CANADA MAY FOLLOW SILVER CUT

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada may have to lower the silver content of its coinage as a result of President Johnson's recommendation to Congress to cut the use of silver in American coins, it was indicated here today.

Officials of the Royal Canadian Mint declined comment on the Washington announcement that silver is to be dropped from American dimes and quarters, and cut to 40 per cent from 90 per cent of American half-dollars.

Silver is used in Canadian 10, 25, 50-cent and $1 coins, but the Canadian coins contain only 80 per cent silver in comparison to the American 90 per cent content.

Arthur Mayse

There was a time when we used to gamble with our luck and take a gas-line lantern into our battered canvas pavilion for light and warmth.

No more, though. We got scared out of that trick a couple of years ago when someone (me) jiggled the generator lever of a pressure lantern hanging in our tent doorway.

The flareup was instant and ugly; but luckily the breeze was blowing away from the tent. I hooked the rig with a pole and tossed it, still flaming, behind a log. When we investigated a cautious few minutes later, it was burning serenely, as its manturer intended it to, though with a cracked and well-smoked glass.

The mantle hadn't broken, which was all but miraculous. Gas lamp mantles usually break if one so much as changes his mind, and it's well to pack several spares.

We still use the lantern, cleaned up and thoroughly checked over. But outside only, where it can't scare the bejudas out of us. Used so, these rigs are unbeatable for camp use.

For tent light, an old-fashioned candle is sufficient, or if one happens to be a sleeping-bag reader, one of the excellent six-volt lanterns now on the market.

These last make a good, if expensive and rather heavy trail light.

For outdoors foot-travel at night, however, my own preference is for a homely and all-but-costless gadget called a "bug." Few city folk have heard of this rig, but it has probably lighted more wilderness trails in British Columbia than any other device.

It consists of a candle thrust through a hole in the side of a jam or tobacco tin, to which a wire handle is attached.

We usually have a candle bug or two kicking around our basement, and prefer them to flashlights for the occasional night stroll through our wildlands to the cove.

The woodsmen's bug not only sheds a mellow golden glow, but throws the light where he needs it. This isn't a nervous hundred feet ahead, but around and just past his feet.

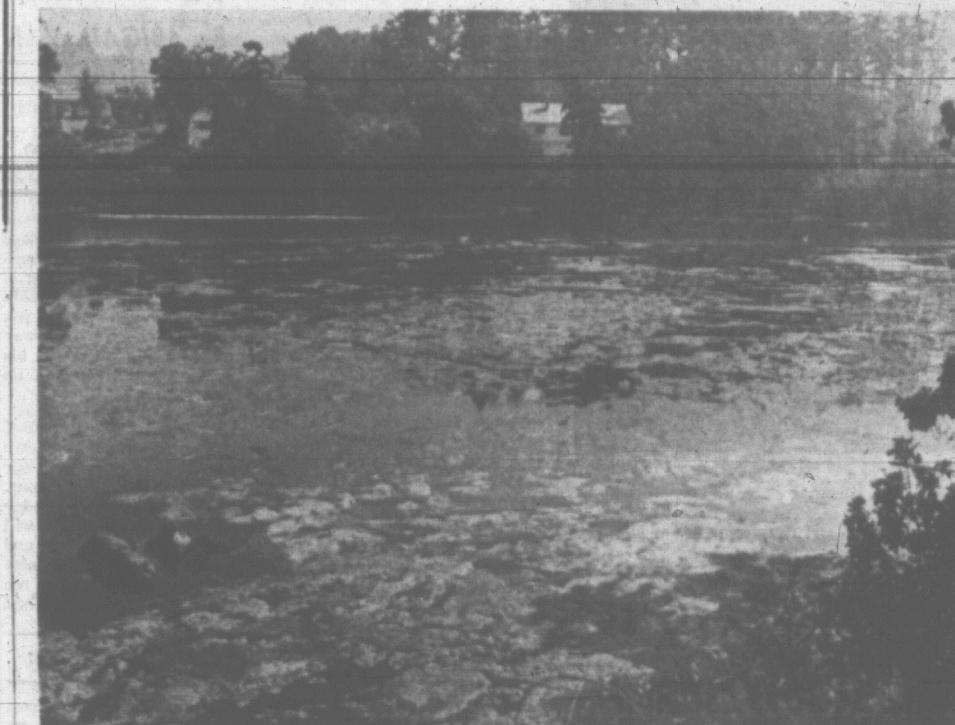

Since you might like sometime to make a bug, here are more detailed instructions. First, pick an empty jam, tobacco or peanut butter can in the larger size. Not a coffee can . . . those are too shallow.

Haggle a hole slightly less than candle size midway along one side, then with hammer and nail, puncture a dozen or so draft-holes in the bottom. Attach a fore-and-aft handle cut from stovepipe wire or an old coat hanger, and hunt up an ordinary white paraffin candle.

Don't jam the candle too far through the hole, and when you light it, no need to worry about the soot which will at once form on the tin. A bug isn't seasonal until it's properly sooted.

Follow these directions and you will have a light that nothing less than a hurricane or submersion under water will extinguish untimely.

CARE FOR A SWIM? Eight years ago you could swim just here, says E. W. Izard, 980 Arundel, whose Portage Inlet home borders on algae and weeds—newcomers since 1957. He blames mess on nitrogen from septic tank and treated sewage effluent. Second picture, up the creek, is rubbish like this, viewed by Capt. James Barr, 965 Trans-Canada Highway, who complains Colquitz has never been cleaned out. At other places, weeds, tires, planks and bits of metal clog channel. Effluent from Northridge sewage treatment plant flows past here to Portage Inlet and Gorge.

Saanich Putting Houses Before Health—Wurtele

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele today said Saanich gives precedence to subdivision expansion over the health and welfare of Gorge waterway district.

He spoke critically again of Saanich's plan to empty an additional 35,000 daily gallons of treated sewage effluent into Colquitz Creek, then into Portage Inlet and the waterway. "They say we can't block progress," Reeve Wurtele said. "I'm building a new house, and I can't do it without sewer connections."

"The health and welfare of a district is far more important than development of a subdivision," the reeve said.

TEMPORARY

It has been pointed out that the enlarged treatment plant for Northridge subdivision would be only a temporary measure, until trunk sewers can be laid. But the earliest this can be expected is about three years.

Provincial pollution control board has approved the Saanich application, pending protests. District residents are up in arms and Thursday formed a new anti-pollution association.

Saanich council will consider Monday whether to make formal protest.

Victoria city parks committee last week recommended that council authorize its solicitor to oppose the Saanich application this month.

'We'll Start All Over' Says Wurtele

Esquimalt is ready to resume a mail a motion talks immediately with View Royal residents, Reeve A. C. Wurtele said today.

His statement followed Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's announcement Thursday that the two areas should start afresh in negotiating a union.

Mr. Campbell said he was following a recommendation by a provincial commission studying the merger scheme.

All steps taken up to now should be disregarded, the commission recommended.

Reeve Wurtele said Esquimalt's petition, which officially sought a municipal merger with the panhandle area of View Royal, is now a dead issue.

"This is fine with me, but it is too bad it has been thrown to one side," he said.

If it is in the interests of the majority, then Esquimalt will have to accept it, Reeve Wurtele said.

Esquimalt council is ready to meet View Royal residents right away, he added.

PUSSYFOOTING

The reeve had earlier accused the provincial commission of "pussyfooting" on the matter.

Esquimalt residents approved by 72 per cent majority the proposal to merge with part of the View Royal district. Subsequent approaches on the matter bogged down.

"This, I am assured, will make it possible for the Esquimalt council and the group representing the citizens of View Royal to meet on an equal footing and free of any previous entanglements," Mr. Campbell said.

He said any agreement reached would be put to a vote in both areas.

Nickel Payoff Costs Club Fine of $200

A city detective made a nickel when he played an illegal slot machine in the Alano Club Tuesday, he said in city court today.

The club was fined $200 for keeping a gaming house. Magistrate William Ostler also ordered that two "one-armed bandits" found on its premises be destroyed.

Detective Walter Calwell said he and Detective Lyle Somers went to the club, a social centre for members of Alcoholics Anonymous, at 1402 Broad Street.

He said the machines were in a room just off the coffee shop. "I put a nickel in one machine and got back two nickels," he said.

GUILTY PLEA

Don Anderson, lawyer for the club, entered a guilty plea to the charge. He said the club was a nonprofit organization and money made from the slot machines was used to help defray expenses.

Mr. Anderson said the slot machines were in use for 15 years and this showed "a previous pattern of tolerance" by the police.

The magistrate said "it is a pity that a club which does such good work has to resort to illegal activity" to support itself.

Jensen News, 644 Yates, which was also charged with keeping a gaming house, pleaded not guilty. Police allege that two pinball machines found on the premises are illegal.

The Jensen case will go to trial Aug. 14.

Just back from a Confederation Centennial seminar in Ottawa, Mayor R. B. Wilson today went into secret session with administrative officials.

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis also was present.

Neither the mayor nor Reeve Curtis had comment to make following the meeting.

Mayor Wilson has expressed concern in the past for delay in selection of a Greater Victoria centennial project to mark the 100th anniversary of Confederation in 1967.

It has also been pointed out that the amount of money available to the capital region would not permit the type of project thought suitable by Saanich—a major sports stadium.

Victoria aldermen have considered informally the advisability of going ahead with its own project, the restoration of Royal Athletic Park.

Latest detailed suggestion comes from regional basketball associations, which proposes a $375,000 indoor sports auditorium for 3,000 initial spectators in permanent seating, plus another 3,000 in temporary seating.

Land about 10 acres would cost an additional $75,000, it is suggested.

BUILDING CONTRACT IMMINENT

Contract is expected to be announced any day for Victoria's new "million dollar plus" Unemployment Insurance and Income Tax office.

The office block will be built on Johnson-Vancouver Pandora property.

Government officials have confirmed the letting of the contract to a local construction firm but say they are not yet ready to make the official announcement.

"That," said a spokesman, "will have to be made by the politicians."

Milk now sells for 25 cents a quart delivered.

The Vancouver price boost—from 26 cents to 27 cents—was announced today by G. O. Okulitch, acting general manager of the Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association.

He said the increase was forced on the dairies by a new labor agreement which he claimed would cost distributors and producers $3,000,000 over the next three years.

Mr. Okulitch said "And it could be more."

The new labor agreement, to be ratified next week, calls for a 20-cent hourly increase each year for three years. Average wage in the industry at present is $2.42 an hour.

Spokesmen for major distributors in Victoria were reticent this morning when asked what the possibilities were of a similar increase in Victoria.

Northwestern Creamery, Island Farms Dairies Co-op Association, Palm Dairies and Shepherd's Dairy all enter negotiations this fall.

CENT LESS

A spokesman for Northwestern said he had no comment on the Vancouver price increase but was quick to point out that in Greater Victoria milk has always sold for a cent a quart less than in Vancouver.

It will now sell for at least two cents a quart less delivered to the house.

Island Farms took the same stand.

"No comment on the price increase or the possibilities of a similar increase here," the spokesman said. "We have our own labor negotiations coming up this fall."

Other dairies polled in a telephone survey voiced the same answer.

None of the spokesmen would commit themselves to a "yes" or "no" answer on the possibility of an increase.

TOPICS of the DAY

Three Victoria carpenters' apprentices are in Vancouver today taking part in the competition for provincial apprentices of the B.C. Carpenters' Union.

William Price and Dick Reynolds, representing Local 1598, are entering in the carpentry competition, and Victor Kennedy, representing Local 2527 (millworkers) is competing in the cabinet making division.

The contest, which is being held in the Brentwood shopping centre, began Wednesday and ends Saturday.

Two winners, one from each division, will represent British Columbia at the western regional competition in New Mexico.

Entries to a Junior SPCA Pet Show Saturday at Victoria Riding Academy will be able to travel by bus from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A pet restriction on city buses has been lifted by transit officials to allow owners without personal transportation to participate in the pet show.

Although allowed on the vehicles, the pets must be restricted to a basket or a cage.

The show to begin at 9 a.m. will be opened by the Honorable Frank Richter, provincial minister of agriculture.

As for campstoves, the variety is now so bewildering, that I'll merely state my preference for those which burn "white gas" under pressure, and add that a small charcoal burner is a most useful adjunct. In spots where fires can't be lighted, a camp-sized barbecue or its Japanese ancestor, the hibachi, provides supplementary cooking space and a welcome source of warmth.

One warning here: unless you court carbon monoxide poisoning, never cuddle-up to a charcoal burner in a tent.

But for warmth and cheer, nothing beats a fire; and the Forest Service men who first thought to install handy iron grates in our provincial park campfires deserve a special blessing.

You can cook on them, get warm by them, and dry clothes at them... although for this last necessity, I recommend three trips through the spin-driers in the nearest laundromat!

CARE FOR A SWIM? Eight years ago you could swim here, says E. W. Izard, 980 Arundel, whose Portage Inlet home borders on algae and weeds—newcomers since 1957. He blames mess

Saanich Putting Houses Before Health—Wurtele

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele today said Saanich gives precedence to subdivision expansion over the health and welfare of Gorge waterway district.

He spoke critically again of Saanich's plan to empty an additional 35,000 daily gallons of treated sewage effluent into any waterway, ACCUMULATES

Reeve Wurtele cites the fact that Colquitz and the salt-water way are comparatively flat.

"Effluent accumulates there, and lower down in our (Gorge Park) swimming pool."

"This is nice clean water. We don't want any effluent there. It's like fertilizer; it helps create algae. It's a darn shame."

Meanwhile, Victoria city sanitary inspector Lloyd Smith, speaking as a citizen, charged Saanich authorities with deliberately trying to hoodwink the public.

He said he could not remain silent in the face of a TV demonstration showing a Saanich engineer hold up a jar of treated effluent and state that he would drink it if thirsty enough.

"Who are they trying to fool? They hold a jar of water up and they say it's swimming pool standards. Nonsense... If you filled a pool with this stuff, no one in his right mind would swim in it."

"And there's the virus angle, too. Treated sewage is not necessarily virus-free," Mr. Smith said.

Residents formed the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Association, naming Dick Faulks chairman and Mrs. Betty Hendrickson secretary.

MEETING THURSDAY—Organizer Howard Roberts, 995 Trans-Canada, said about 24 persons representing nearly every area touching on the waterway gathered at his home.

Next Thursday will be a public meeting in Christie Point apartments recreation room, where it will be decided when to appear before the pollution control board.

He said fact-finding and publicity committees were formed. Their aim is to get federal, provincial and municipal government action to have the entire watershed draining into the Colquitz sewer.

Mr. Campbell said he was following a recommendation by a provincial commission studying the merger scheme.

All steps taken up to now should be disregarded, the commission recommended.

DEAD ISSUE—Reeve Wurtele said Esquimalt is ready to resume a amalgamation talks immediately with View Royal residents, Reeve A. C. Wurtele said today.

His statement followed Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's announcement Thursday that the two areas should start afresh in negotiating a union.

Mr. Campbell said he was following a recommendation by a provincial commission studying the merger scheme.

"It's a major issue with the whole area. It's their heritage we are squandering here," Mr. Roberts said.

DEFENCE ASKS:

Why Wasn't Bennett A Witness?

By PETE LOUDON
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Failure of the Crown to call Premier Bennett in the "Dear Hal" letter case was scored in Assize Court here today.

Chief defence counsel, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, of Victoria, told the jury in his summation this morning:

"The one person only who could give conclusive evidence, W. A. C. Bennett, does not appear before you to give evidence."

Can Be Called

"The law is no respector of persons." No matter how exalted a person may be, he can be called by the court, said Mr. McKenzie.

"But he has not appeared before you."

"On that you are entitled to draw your own conclusions," Mr. McKenzie added.

Al Williamson, Vancouver public relations man, stands accused of forgery and uttering a forgery in respect to a letter which was sent to Ottawa over a signature purporting to be that of Premier Bennett.

Basic Defence

"The basic defence," said Mr. McKenzie, "is that Williamson had an honest belief he was authorized to write the letter."

Mr. McKenzie said the crown had not proved otherwise beyond a reasonable doubt.

Mr. McKenzie said the crown might argue that Williamson did not believe he had authority because he had told Hal Dornan, an assistant to Prime Minister Pearson, that he didn't think the premier would write such a letter.

The defence counsel said the crown might infer that if the premier wouldn't write it, Williamson couldn't say he had written it on the premier's behalf.

"Does this inevitably follow? It does not," said Mr. McKenzie.

Personal Letter

He said this was a personal letter on a first-name basis from the head of this province to a relatively "insignificant functionary" in the prime minister's office.

Mr. McKenzie said the premier would not wish to interfere personally through such a channel.

"Is that context the statement that the premier would not want to write it makes sense."

"It is obvious the premier wants certain things done he is not prepared to do personally. In politics the right hand does not necessarily know what the left hand is doing."

Denied Existence

Mr. McKenzie said in the matter of campaign funds for instance, "the premier has denied their very existence," but despite the premier's lack of personal involvement, campaign funds are gathered by other hands.

Williamson did not tell the RCMP he had honestly believed he had authority to write the letter, it is true," said the defence counsel, but he pointed out the police did not ask this question.

Mr. McKenzie recalled testimony where Williamson reported

WILLIAMSON STORY DENIED BY GUNDERSON

By PETER LOUDON
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Einar Gunderson testified Thursday that he had refused to ask Premier Bennett to say he had written the "Dear Hal" letter and then say he had forgotten.

A surprise witness in the Assize Court case here, Gunderson said the apparent falsehood had been urged on him by Vancouver public relations man Al Williamson.

Mr. Gunderson's testimony bluntly contradicted earlier testimony by Williamson who is being tried for forgery and uttering of a forgery.

The witness, who identified himself as vice-president of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, was called during rebuttal by the crown after closing of the case for the defence.

No Case'

Mr. Gunderson was told by crown counsel George Murray that Williamson had earlier testified that he had met Mr. Gunderson Feb. 17 and "that you had told him there was no case against him."

Mr. Murray said the earlier testimony quoted Mr. Gunderson as saying that Williamson had written many letters for the premier and in this case he had only exceeded his authority, that it was too bad the premier didn't send a letter "but don't worry about it."

On the stand, Mr. Gunderson did not recall this.

He said that on the date mentioned, "I met Mr. Williamson on the street."

Indiscretion

He told me of an indiscretion he felt badly about. He suggested I get in touch with the premier, who had denied writing the letter."

He asked me to ask the premier to say he had forgotten.

"I told him if he had a confession to make, he'd better speak to the premier himself."

Mr. Gunderson also said he knew of no written proposal for Williamson to do confidential work for the premier and Mr. Gunderson as well as public relations for the PGE. Williamson earlier had claimed the premier had approved such a written proposal but had been lost.

Our Friend'

The letter referred to in the testimony was the so-called Dear Hal letter which was written to Hal Dornan in May, 1964, asking his help in the case of "our friend" who was endeavoring to settle in Canada.

It was indicated the friend was Harry Stonehill, a wealthy U.S. businessman who had been expelled from the Philippines and Mexico.

The letter was directed to Dornan in his capacity as assistant to Prime Minister Pearson. The signature was apparently that of Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Williamson stands charged with forgery and uttering a forgery and the letter is exhibited.

The Gunderson statements followed testimony in which Williamson admitted to having written the letter to Dornan on the premier's stationery and above a signature he believed to be the premier's.

Document Lost

The defence contention has been that Williamson believed he had authority to do this because of his close connection with Premier Bennett and Mr. Gunderson, the premier's confidant.

Earlier in the trial (today is its fifth day), Williamson said he had written a proposal to work for the PGE and for the premier and Mr. Gunderson in confidential matters. Williamson
